GRANDMA LANE ON HONOR LIST OF SUNSET CLUB

She's 86 Years Old and Is Pioneer Resident; Paintings Chief Interest

Although handicapped by being only 86 years of age, Mrs. S. J. ("Grandma") Lane of 209 East Chestnut street, has, nevertheless, been named an honorary member of The Evening News Sunset club, this honor being conferred on her for her youthful spirit, progressive enthusiasm and artistic accomplishments. "Grandma" will be known as the club's "youngest" because she has four years to catch up before she sees the 90-year milestone.

Glendale has claimed "Grandma" as a resident for sixteen years and during that time she has made many friends, who are well acquainted with her life and accomplishments. "Grandma's" chief interest is her painting and when one visits her son's home, where she resides, and sees the oil paintings, crayon and ink sketches she has made and then hears that she did not have a brush or crayon in her hand until after she was 50 years of age, one marvels at the splendid work she has done. In addition to her painting, "Grandma" has written poetry and takes an active interest in affairs of the day.

Born In Canada

"Grandma" was born in Ontario, Canada, thirty miles below Windsor, eighty-six years ago, and, for twenty years, engaged in millinery and dressmaking. From Canada she and her family came to the states living for some time in North Dakota and Kansas and coming to California thirty-four years ago.

They first came to Los ngeles and then went north to Oakland, where "Grandma" lived for fourteen years, when she came to Glendale to reside.

"Grandma" still keeps up her art work and takes pleasure in exhibiting her paintings, explaining with an occasional "this is one I did recently."

Interesting Picture

One of the most interesting pictures is a crayon portrait of her husband, the fine work and lifelike expression seeming at a distance to be a photograph.

"Grandma" has painted fruits, flowers, landscapes and figures, and another picture that attracts the visitor's eye is an oil painting of a fruit study, which was exhibited at the Chicago world's fair in 1893.

Two other particularly attractive pieces are long panels, one of grapes and the other of plums, es-

Miss Swanson has been attending school continuously in Glendale and it is partly to eliminate the necessity of her making the trip back and forth on the Pacific Electric that the family is desirous of returning to Glendale.

CONTRACT POSTAL SYSTEM IS OFFER TO EAST SIDE

Postmaster Jackson Reports on Investigation at Association Meet

The impossibility of obtaining a classified postal sub-station for the vicinity of Glendale avenue and Broadway was announced by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson yesterday noon in the Broadway Inn, at the weekly luncheon of the Glendale Advancement association.

The establishment of a contract sub-station was recommended by Postmaster Jackson, who stated that he was authorized and prepared to receive reasonable bids. He asserted that there would be very little difference between the service given by a classified sub-station and a contract station.

C. E. Stanley, chairman of the postoffice committee, recommended the appointment of a committee to report on the practicability of a contract station. Motion to this effect was made by Dr. Jessie Russell.

C. W. Ingledue, who presided, intimated that the establishment of a contract station would not meet his expectations. However, he appointed as a committee to investigate, Charles A. Stuart, Mr. Fischer, P. J. Hayselden, Mrs. Mabel T. Tight and C. E. Stanley.

According to Postmaster Jackson, the revenue from a classified sub-station in this vicinity would not be commensurate with its cost of maintenance. He asserted that such a station would require a superintendent at a salary of $2100 a year and a clerk at $1400 a year in addition to janitor service.

Immediate action was requested by Postmaster Jackson, who called attention the desirability of having the contract station in operation before the Christmas holidays.

WIFE RENDERS AID TO HUSBAND WHO IS BADLY HURT

Given Credit for Saving Life When Man Injured at Lumber Plant

Rushing to the aid of her husband, who had been seriously injured on the big rip-saw in the Eagle Rock Lumber company plant, Mrs. William Sturgeon, 126 West Myrtle avenue, Eagle Rock, a bride of only a month, undoubtedly saved her husband's life by her promptness in rendering first-aid; she stopped the flow of blood caused when the rapidly-moving saw had severed a thumb and a finger on his right hand and cut one of the large arteries on his left arm.

William Sturgeon, an experienced sawmill man, was the victim of an unusual accident yesterday morning when in some unknown manner he came in contact with the big saw in the plant of the Eagle Rock Lumber company where he is employed.

Renders First-Aid

Mrs. Sturgeon is a bookkeeper in the office of the same company, and upon learning that her husband had been hurt, she instantly rushed to the other end of the grounds of the plant where the accident had occurred and with remarkable coolness rendered first-aid treatment in lessening the flow of blood, and assisted in driving the man to the Glendale sanitarium, where he is now under the care of Dr. Carle H. Phinney.

While Mr. Sturgeon's wounds are understood to be of a very serious nature and he is weakened from the shock and loss of blood, it is thought he will be able to be removed to his home within the next few days.

Emil F. Swanson, proprietor of the Eagle Rock Lumber company, states that Mr. Sturgeon is an experienced man around all kinds of saws, and cannot account for the accident, and speaks in high praise of the heroic manner in which Mrs. Sturgeon aided her husband.

Among them are flint instruments which show that 5,000 B. C., the people of Egypt were among the first hunters of big game.

Fifty-nine varieties of vitrified paving brick have been eliminated, and the styles and sizes reduced from sixty-six to seven.

Within the next thirty days construction will be well under way upon the magnificent new gateway to be erected at the Clementina street entrance to Occidental college. Friends of the college are awaiting with expectancy and pleasure the day of the completion of this gateway, for it will mark a huge stride toward a more glorious Occidental.

William Mead Orr, a retired business man of Alhambra, recently presented Occidental college with $10,000 to be used in building a memorial entrance to the college, and upon his return from the east he will place his final endorsement on the plans to be used in its construction.

The gateway itself is to be constructed in three separate units, one of which will be placed at either side of the roadway, and the other to form an imposing centerpiece.

Polished granite, girded and interlaced with a network of bronze is to be the material used in its construuction.

The height of the columns of granite will be approximately 8 feet, and it will extend almost 20 feet on either side of the roadway.

Myron T. Hunt, Occidental's noteworthy architect, has made it possible to achieve a structure which will be second to no other similar decorative entrance in the southland, it is announced.

HUGE SIGN READY TO BOOST CITY OF EAGLE ROCK

Publicity Committee Is Now Making Plans to Put It In Place on Hill

The Electric Sign company of Los Angeles got into communication with George Van Sands, secretary of the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon, and announced that the big sign ordered by the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce had been completed and is ready for delivery.

The secretary called upon Milton H. Berry, Jr., one of the members of the publicity committee largely through whose untiring efforts the purchase price of $800 was raised by popular subscription among the business men of Eagle Rock, and conferred with him relative to the erection of the huge sign.

Mr. Berry states that it will be necessary for the Edison company to run their lines up to the point on the hillside at the head of Eddy avenue that has been chosen for the location of the sign, and that it is going to be a big job to get the sign up on the hillside, as the letters that spell the words "Eagle Rock" are ten feet high.

"We ought to declare a holiday, and get the Boy Scouts out to help us get it up there," said Berry.

This matter will undoubtedly come up before the Chamber of Commerce at their next meeting the last Tuesday in this month, and it is expected that the sign will be erected and in operation early in November.

HONEYGROVE, Tex.—Finding it necessary to go to the fields for a few hours, Mrs. Ollie Cantrell, a young married woman, sang her four-months-old baby to sleep and left him happily dreaming on the bed.

When she returned, accompanied by her husband, they found the little one had fallen from the bed and broken its neck.

A coating of boiled linseed oil will prevent polished metals from rusting if allowed to dry on them.

WOMEN WILL HEAR WATER-POWER ACT DISCUSSED

Mass Meeting Planned for Los Angeles, October 25, Announcement

Eagle Rock women are to unite Wednesday night, October 25, with women of Los Angeles in staging a monster mass meeting of women voters at Trinity auditorium, Los Angeles, to hear of the $500,000,000 water and power act of California.

Leslie B. Henry, a prominent investment banker, who has made a study of the provisions of the act, which is to be voted on next month, is to point out to the assembled women the dangers of the act as the bond dealers view them.

The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Woman's Bond and Tax Study league, which numbers Eagle Rock women among its members. Mrs. E. S. Pauly is to be chairman of the hospitality committee for the evening and will be assisted by a delegation of representative women from all sections of the city.

INCOME TAX BAD AS INQUISITION

English Taxpayers Usually Frightened Into Paying More Than Due

By F. A. WRAY
For International News Service.

LONDON—British citizens are just undergoing their annual torture—that of the income tax officials.

Compared with it the Star Chamber and the Spanish Inquisition were institutions of mercy. They merely tortured physically. The British income tax leaves the citizens practically without a cent and entirely without self-respect.

For the average person in Britain the income tax is five shillings in the pound—25 per cent of income. For the wealthy, when combined with what is known as "supertax," it may amount to as much as 80 per cent of income.

Puzzling Statistics

To begin with, the average common or garden taxpayer has to fill in forms relating to his income. In their statistical details they would puzzle any well-informed accountant.

With these he does his best. And then the person known as the "income tax surveyor" begins to dispute.

He begins by assuming that the innocent taxpayer is attempting to defraud the treasury. He demands more and further information and threatens the direst penalties of the law.

The taxpayer makes further returns, but meets with the same fate. He is told that his return is incorrect but that the Income Tax Commissioners have assessed him at a certain figure. That figure is usually just three times the amount of the citizen's return.

And the powers of these income tax people are entirely arbitrary. If the amount they demand is not paid to the minute they can do practically what they please. If they wish they can just descend on the taxpayer's home—without notice—and seize and sell all his furniture without more ado.

Relief Impossible

Process of this kind is beloved of income tax officials. Extreme action of this sort brings them official commendation and increase in salary. For every extra percentage they extort from the taxpayer they receive kudos in kind.

Sometimes the citizen insists on appealing against his assessment to the institution known as Somerset House, the headquarters in England of the Inland Revenue. And there he meets his Waterloo right away.

To begin with, he is kept waiting between four and five hours in a great big lofty, unfurnished waiting room. Then, when more or less brought to the proper frame of mind, he is suddenly introduced into the presence of the gentlemen known as the "Commissioners of the Inland Revenue."

Twelve of them sit around a table, and as the unhappy victim approaches they make one concentrated dive in his direction.

"How long have you been defrauding the Revenue?" asks one in a hectoring voice.

Scared Into It

"Do you know the penaltes for an incorrect return?" says a second.

"Have you anything to say before we instruct the authorities to take proceedings against you?" shouts a third, and so that process goes on. In three minutes the poor unhappy victim believes himself guilty of all charges and is glad to escape the best way he can.

In the finish he is usually told that his assessment is treble the figure originally fixed, and he rushes out and pays it, glad to get away from these fiends.

And then the trained team of income tax inquisitors, reckoning it has done a fine morning's work for the country, goes to lunch and laughs.

A machine has been invented by means of which it is possible to produce sea air in the heart of a great city. It is being used in the treatment of various diseases.

BUILDING FIGURES FOR YEAR SHOW CITY'S GROWTH

Increase of 100 Per Cent Is Reported As Present Rate In Eagle Rock

Miss Mary Coffey, head stenographer in the city hall in Eagle Rock, the building records, and the big adding machine in the city hall are responsible for the following facts and figures relative to building permits in Eagle Rock.

The total for 1921 was $1,103,853. When the year 1922 was barely six months old the total building permits had already exceeded the total for the previous year, and yesterday afternoon the total for the year had reached $1,598,555 which if continued at the same rate throughout the balance of the year will show an increase of practically 100 per cent over the figures of last year. When it is taken into consideration that almost 90 per cent of the permits issued are for modest dwellings whose average cost is around $4000, it is a record that it is claimed runs second to no other like community in California.

F. W. Greening, to build a six-room residence and garage at 150 Rosemont to cost $4000.

H. C. Rumsey, to build a five room residence on the rear of the lot at 108 North Ellis to cost $2500.

Prince Quits U. S. for Native Island

CLEVELAND — The United States is not what it's "cracked up" to be.

So declares the Prince of Timton, who, after a year's residence in America, most of which was spent in Cleveland, will return to his native land.

Timton is an island in the Mediterranean Sea, fifty miles from the coast of Palestine. It is ruled by Martello Abelishka, under a British protectorate. Any mature male among its 20,000 brown-skinned population can take unto himself as many wives as he wants, needs or can afford. It doesn't cost much to dress them. A loin cloth is the only thing worn in select circles, or outside of them for that matter.

While in America the Prince took his mother's name. He is known here as Maurice Newman. He resides at 2561 East Forty-ninth street.

Newman has seventeen brothers older than he who are in line for succession to his father, and thus has a slim chance of being king.

However, when he returns, he will discard the garb of civilization, take unto himself a few wives—and who would want to be a king, anyway?

Oxygen breathed by any one person can be measured by a new device recently designed.

'Rock Inn' to Open In Theatre Building

"The Rock Inn" is the name of the beautiful new confectionery store that opens tomorrow in the new United theatre building at 114 South Central avenue, Eagle Rock.

J. D. Nolan, representative of a Los Angeles newspaper, is the proprietor. Mr. Nolan is at present living in Glendale, but contemplates moving to Eagle Rock within the near future.

The establishment is equipped with the very latest fountain equipment. The woodwork is finished in birch mahogany and it is said to be one of the most attractive stores of its kind in this section.

There are three booths and the seating capacity will take care of twenty-two persons at one time.

"I propose to handle nothing but the very best class of goods, and will also have a luncheonette service," declares Mr. Nolan.

Two Killed, Seven Injured In Wreck

WILLIAMSPORT, Ind., Oct. 20.—Charles Schmugge, an engineer, was killed and seven persons injured when a fast Wabash flyer was ditched near here early today. It was learned later that H. T. Smith, baggagemaster, of Toledo, Ohio, had died of injuries and burns received in the wreck.

Investigation revealed that spikes and bolts had been taken out and laid at the side of the track before the crash took place.

Fireman John Hinton, who was only slightly injured, said he saw the track with a section of the rail missing, but that it was too late to stop the train.

A posse which includes the county sheriff and a number of railroad detectives are combing the countryside in an effort to find the train wreckers.

The engine and seven coaches were hurled into a ditch and burned. It was regarded as somewhat of a miracle that not more persons were killed.

FAMOUS 'SPIRITS' VISIT SCHOOL AT NIGHT CLASSES

Say Abraham Lincoln and Benjamin Franklin Wonder at Methods Used

By ART SHERBORNE

Abraham Lincoln was this country's most successful night school student. Benjamin Franklin came a close second. Neither of them had the advantages which are offered by the night school now in session four nights a week at Glendale Union High school.

Now that the hunting season is on, the shades of these two celebrities visited the local institution last night—hunting for information. They got it, too!

The number of students diligently applying themselves to study was their first surprise. Each classroom seemed to be well filled with pupils of both sexes and indiscriminate ages.

"In my day," remarked Mr. Franklin with a sigh, "a young man had to go up into an attic to study or his folks thought him queer."

"Yes, that's right," replied Honest Abe, shifting his chew to the other cheek. "No wonder the spellin' in your almanac was so dog-gone odd. I usta hafta do my studyin' in the loft of our cabin when I was a kid. Another thing: Look at the number of girls and women here! Didn't use to think it was worth educatin' 'em."

Well Lighted Rooms

As the pair passed into a well-lighted classroom, Franklin blinked.

"Guess you're responsible for this illumination," smiled Lincoln. "An electric light globe surely is better than a tallow candle."

"Yes," confessed Franklin modestly, "and it surely was some job to make the candles, too. Hot tallow ain't the nicest stuff in the world. Makin' candles' how I got my start."

"No wonder you invented electricity," remarked Lincoln.

"Can't really say that I invented it," corrected Franklin. "There's been electricity in cats as long as there's been cats."

Strains of music proceeded from one of the classrooms as they entered. A Columbia graphophone was using a Victor needle to play a Brunswick record.

"What's that?" inquired the ex-president inquisitively.

"Well, it's been a long time since I attended court," replied Franklin candidly, "I'm not up much on this popular dance music, but it sounds to me like "My Indiana Lullaby.'"

About twenty disciplies of the Palmer method of penmanship were making rhythmical scratches on perfectly good white paper. They worked in time to the music, too.

Desks Are Fine

"Those desks are fine," remarked Ben. "Look how comfortable they are!"

"Yes, I suppose so, for an ordinary person," replied Lincoln. "How about a lanky fellow like me. When I read law I used to hafta do my studying laying on my 'stummick.' No wonder I never go on to this new fangled arm movement!"

"Yes, and no wonder you grew lengthwise," retorted his companion.

The class in shorthand was visited next. Here thirty-seven girls and three boys were paying strict attention to dictation.

"Looks like competition's pretty strong among the girls," remarked Abe, with a chuckle.

"Psh," admonished Franklin. They don't come here to flirt. They come here to study. Honest to gosh they do! Besides, there are more boys 'n girls over in the shops and they do their 'sparkin' on the way home."

Girls Learn Dictation

"I see," declared Lincoln, "the girls learn how to give dictation while the boys learn how to keep the wolf from the door."

A ryhthmical rat-tat-tat-tat was heard across the hall, and the two spirits went over to investigate. Thirty typewriters were in operation.

"If I had only had one of those things to write my autobiography," sighed Franklin.

"Yes," laughed Mr. Lincoln, "I suspect you could have written some things down before they escaped your memory. I've always thought that there were a lot of things that never got into that volume."

"If you'd had one of those machines," retorted Franklin testily, "you wouldn't have had to wait so long before writin' that Emancipation Proclamation. I'll bet you almost choked on those big words."

Classes in sewing and millinery upstairs were next visited. Here several dozen girls—both literally and complimentary—were endeavoring to obtain as much information in as short a space of time as possible.

Like Quilting Party

"Something like a quilting party—only more exciting," suggested Abe.

Franklin assumed a business-like attitude and pulled a note-book out of his coat pocket which soon revealed the following :"A fire hat doesn't make a fine head, but a fine head is necessary to make a fine hat."

The girls' gymnasium proved to be a lively place. About two score of women in gymnasium suits were batting a ball across a net. Just as the spirits entered the aforesaid leather projectile bounced ker-flump upon a plump individual who had started to reduce but hadn't gotten very far. She emitted a shrill squeak and the two celebrities made their exit.

A volley ball game, a boxing match and a lot of horseplay were all in progress at the same time in the boys' gymnasium.

Rail Splitting Best

"Good sport, all right," admitted Mr. Lincoln, meditatively, "but it doesn't equal rail splitting."

"No," confessed Franklin seriously, "or 'shagging' around Philadelphia with a hand-cart full of Saturday Evening Posts. Only, thank goodness, its advertising wasn't quite so voluminous then."

Gleaming lights from the mechanical arts building attracted the two strangers thither. The hum of industry and whirr of machinery were most conspicuous. The auto workshop, the wood-working department and the machine shop were all well filled with earnest workers, all of whom were too busy to spend much time in conversation.

"Looks like Glendale's got some high school," declared Mr. Lincoln.

"Yes," admitted Mr. Franklin, "And it's going to offer a lot more subjects just as soon as a lot of people around the town find they can get almost any subject they want if they'll just turn out and show their interest."

"According to what the younger spirits tell me," remarked "Honest Abe," "This business of staying at home nights, when there's a nice school to attend is the cat's vertebra."

PICTURES ASSIST IMPROVING HOME

Contribute to Contentment and Peace of Mind of Entire Famliy

Suppose we give some suggestions in this article for the accessories, or the completing details of decoration such as pictures, floor coverings, draperies, etc. Wall paper has been a delightful theme and we have not yet begun to exhaust its beauties or its possibilities as a background for all these other accessories in decoration, but some of our readers are asking so many questions about these other things that it is only fair to spend some time and see how they assist in developing and completing a well balanced decorated hame. We fear, however, that only one of these accessories can be treated in a single article because we are limited in space, and it would never do to crowd out the murder stories, the movie peoples' doings, the train robberies, the divorce court news, the latest in politics, the Kemal conference or the late fashion parade. Especially with such a subject as ours. Why, if the editors would let us develop this theme of ours to its logical conclusion and make all the world beautiful and peaceful, with our mental and spiritual color arrangements, the world would be such a nice place to live in and our physical natures would be so saturated with contentment, that war would be impossible, for war is ugly, and we are preaching a gospel of beauty. If such a thing were possible and we could go on with our education of the public in things delightful we would spoil a lot of news and we would monopolize the front page. Therefore, we will be content with the allotted space and will confine our subject this time to pictures as an aid in decorating the home, treating the other accessories in the near future. Even in this article we may not be able to consider all the rooms, so we will mention the kind of pictures that are appropriate for the living room, or at least, we will consider the living room first.

The Living Room

Almost every house has one large room which is known as the living room. It is usually the largest room in the house and has taken the place of the two rooms known as the front and back parlors of the old days in the old-fashioned houses or apartments, and sometimes it has been ambitious enough to include the good old-time room known as the library. The useful library has been sent upstairs to spend the rest of its days, which, by the way, is not at all a bad move for it or for its devotees; for what in all the world is better than to go upstairs away from the multiplicity of downstairs duties and there, dressed in some loose fitting clothes, take your easy chair, with your favorite books around you and your encyclopedia, your atlas, dictionary and thesaurus at your elbow, all backed by a nice warm-toned paper wall, proceed to interview your leather and cloth bound friends. Oh, yes, it is altogether too nice, and we must get back to the living room and hang those pictures. It will readily be seen that one large room which answers for so many purposes must necessarily reflect more than any other room in the house the family life of its inmates, for here the family must assemble more frequently than in any other room in the house except, perhaps, in the dining room, and there they meet for one specific purpose. The living room is for general purposes and is the most intimate room in the house; its decorations and furnishings reflect and affect the entire family life, therefore, we realize its importance and its difficulties.

Trying To Decorator

No room in the decorator's experience in house decoration will he find so trying. No room will in itself present so many and such diversified problems. Here he will find both temper and temperament, and here he must be prepared to meet and solve all of these problems which he will do by soothing the temper and satisfying the temperament. This is no room for the expression of half-baked or freakish ideas. Its harmony must be collective and must include all details and demands. If any member of the family has any pet decorative vagaries send them to their own chamber where they alone are the sufferers.

The living room is usually furnished for comfort and convenience (some day we will have a talk on the two "C's" in decoration) it should be dignified without stiffness; a room with plenty of books, comfortable chairs, and a good sized table with a good reading lamp upon it, divans, and in fact, all that goes for rest and comfort, as well as for that which elevates the mind. It should, by the subtle charm of its entire furnishings, invite all to linger within its walls. This room must be the one, which, when hung with pictures, as Beecher so well expressed it, must be hung with such as are representative of the highest ideas and the best thoughts, and should be of such a nature not only to give the greatest pleasure to the eyes, but also be an unconscious education and training to the entire family. This is a high standard, but a correct one from which to furnish a room that consistently contains within its walls the best the family ing no separate room available for that purpose, then the room becomes a fit abode for the muses, music, poetry and art of the house combined.

Old Order Changes

We are getting away from the old custom of having the family portraits hung in the living room. There is no objection to this if they possess artistic merit and are not hung there for sentimental reasons alone. There are many family portraits done by good artists that are works of art, but there are thousands more that are daubs and do not come up to the standards which give them an art value. It is bad enough for one of the family to be obliged to look at them, but when all the family have to look at them and often all the family are looking at them at the same time, there is danger of breaking down the morale as the army would have it, and the better thing to do is to hang them in the upper halls or in the chambers; the attic being a court of last resort. Many good housekeepers save valuable space by taking the old family pictures out of the frames and packing them in an accessible place where they can be produced when desired, thereby making room for the hanging of more interesting pictures, both for the family and its friends.

Right Kind of Pictures

There is, of course, a difference of opinion as to what kinds of pictures are the appropriate ones for certain rooms. Many advisers claim that pictures of one kind only should be in one room, and that in such a room as we have under consideration only black and white prints such as fine engravings and etchings should be used. There are, however, many things to consider in the selection of pictures for a given room and especially the living room, where the interests of the occupants are so varied and in whom tastes and education are of different degrees. Now, every decorator of experience in this work knows that every room is better for having a certain amount of color diffused into its wall decoration for the purpose of warming and toning up the room, and he uses this opportunity and means for introducing this color requirement. Then there are perspectives to consider in selecting the pictures for a room, for if the room be narrow nothing in the world will help to apparently widen it more than landscapes with good perspective which give distance effects.

Some argue that they cannot afford to buy good originals in oil or water color and consequently prefer to keep to black and white or sepia reproductions. There are, however, just as good productions in color as there are in black and white; the thing to bear in mind is, that a good copy of a good picture is better than a poor original. It is possible in these days to buy good copies of the old masters, also of some of the good modern artists; so that the range of selection need not deter one from satisfying every taste and every degree of education in art. Reproducers, and modern methods of reproduction have done more to meet pocketbook conditions and to advance the knowledge of, and the desire for art than any other agency. Not long ago the writer saw an original of Joseph Israels worth $8000, and nearby was a copy of the same picture, and a very good copy which was bought for 50 cents and the buyer of the copy was about as happy as the owner of the $8000 original. Nevertheless, we would like to own the original.

Pictures Worth Using

Here is a list if pictures that was used in one successful living room: "The Home of the Heron," by George Innes; "The Harvest Moon," by Mason; "The Garden of Allah" and "The Rubaiyat" by Maxfield Parrish.

The cutting up of the wall space of the modern house and the tendency for living in apartments has brought the smaller picture into vogue, especially where much panelling is used. Travel and the camera are also great aids in supplying interesting pictures as well as often furnishing prolific topics of conversation in the living room where the family and friends meet. These pictures are not only interesting but educational, especially to stay-at-home travelers.

TYPHOONS RAVAGE COAST OF CHINA

Cities Wrecked by Wind and Waves; Thousands Lose Life on High Seas

By EDNA LEE BOOKER

For International News Service.

SHANGHAI—Typhoons of an unusually devastating and terrifying nature have been sweeping the China coast this summer season, carrying death and destruction in their wake.

Typhoon after typhoon, one terrific storm scarcely over before another breaks, has ravaged the China coast, causing a loss of many thousand lives and a property loss of millions of dollars.

The Swatow typhoon is the greatest tragedy that has occurred in China for many years, and, although weeks have passed since the terrifying disaster, when tidal wave and wind wrecked the city, relief workers are having a difficult time in bringing back the city to normal. Coffins by the thousands are being made, hundreds of dollars are being raised, and relief organizations are still sending their workers to meet the needs of the stunned villagers.

Tourists who have been arriving in China on the great ocean liners and China residents who have been going to or returning from the summer resorts along the coast arrive in Shanghai telling terrible tales of sea travel during the typhoons. Steamers have been dashed on the rocks by the fury of the storms—have had to ride in the trough of the waves to prevent being blown ashore, have had many narrow escapes, while a number of the less fortunate steamers have sunk. Their cargoes and passengers were sucked into the whirlpools which characterize the typhoons. One man tells a story of three days in a typhoon en route from Kobe, Japan, to Tientsin, China. During the storm five awe-inspiring waterspouts were seen. The waterspouts, which are whirling columns of air and water extending from the angry sea to the threatening heavens, travel at a terrific rate of speed and dash to pieces any fishing vessels or steamers which happen to be in their path. The waterspouts are the vampires of the sea, and they glory in dashing men to death.

The mountain resorts of China suffered greatly from the winds that swept through the valleys in terrific gales, uprooting great trees and blowing houses from their foundations. Cloudbursts caused many landslides, and foreigners and Chinese were carried down the mountainsides and buried in the earth and stones.

One of the most tragic deaths was that of the Reverned Percy King, a leading missionary in China. He was in bathing in a pool when he noticed that the land below the Southern Methodist Mission cottage was moving. He called a warning to a number of other missionaries, also swimming, but before he could swim to the shore the landslide swept into the little pool, and he was caught in the overflowing water and swept down some 200 yards on the rocks into a second pool, where he was found dead.

There were many amusing experiences. Shanghai caught the tail end of a number of storms, the force of the wind being so great that street cars, rickshaws and automobiles were temporarily barred from traveling on the Bund. One woman riding in a motor car reached into her bag to take out a veil to tie on her hat. When she opened her purse the wind swept in, carrying a roll of $10 bills from her bag, and before the car could be stopped about $100 was whisked away, and all efforts to find even one of the $10 bills proved futile.

Romances Ripen

A number of summer romances have culminated in marriage because of the typhoons. Pu Too, the sacred island of China, where no one has ever been born or allowed to die, is a popular week-end resort for Shanghai residents. Week-end excursions are run during the summer months to this beautiful little island, where sea bathing is possible. Several of the boats running to Pu Too have been caught in typhoons and forced to anchor for two and three days until the storm passed. Any number of young couples held up by the typhoons have returned to Shanghai engaged.

CHIEF OF POLICE TELLS OF SIREN

Warns People to Observe State Law When They Receive Warning

The purpose of a siren on a police automobile is to "shoo" traffic out of its way.

The sounding of a police siren is a signal for pedestrians and automobiles to get out of the way of an approaching automobile on police duty.

There seems to be considerable ignorance on the part of the public as to the function of the siren on police automobiles, according to Colonel J. D. Fraser, chief of the Glendale police department. He stated recently that people do not seem to be aware of the fact that it is a definite signal for them to get out of the way.

Motorcycles of traffic officers, the police Ford and Dodge and Chief Fraser's Buick are all equipped with sirens.

High Rate of Speed

"The danger is that when an officer sounds the siren he is generally traveling at a high rate of speed," remarked Colonel Fraser. "When people don't pay any attention to it, they are very apt to get hurt. In other words, an officer wouldn't be sounding the siren unless he were traveling at a high rate of speed.

"Charlie Dice was thrown into a ditch and taken to a hospital just before he left, because a man failed to pay any attention to his siren. Instead of pulling to the right of the road with his automobile, he pulled to the left—right in front of him. It was a wonder that Dice wasn't killed.

"The same thing occurred to Officer M. H. Collins about a week later, on Central avenue. A man didn't pull out of the way at all. He wasn't hurt, but he lost the car he was after.

"Another case: An officer had the same experience on Verdugo road. The motorists didn't give him the right of way and he could not take the chance of going through for fear he would hit the car coming against him.

"Those are three cases that I know of. I have had several complaints from officers that people on the highway fail to pay any attention to the siren when it is sounded."

State Law on Subject

Failure to pay attention to a police siren is a violation of the state vehicle act and is punishable by arrest and fine. State law on the subject is as follows:

"Police and fire department vehicles shall at all times be equipped with such a device.

"Vehicles of the police and fire department of any incorporated city shall in all cases while being operated as such, have right of way over all other vehicles with due regard to the safety of the public.

"Upon the approach of any police or fire department vehicle, it shall be the duty of the operator of any street car to stop forthwith unless such street car is crossing an intersection of the public highway, in which case it shall be operated so as to clear the intersection of the highway and then stopped.

"Every other vehicle shall immediately be moved to a position as near as possible and parallel to the right hand curb, and shall remain there until the police and fire department apparatus has passed."

OFFICE BUILDING READY TO OPEN

Nesselroad Block Has Suites for Rent; Structure Is Just Completed

Marking the completion of the Nesselroad building, one of Glendale's newest business blocks, is the announcement in the advertising columns of The News that reservations are now being accepted for office space.

The building is a two-story structure and was started last July. It has a frontage of sixty-seven feet on Broadway and a depth of 106 feet. The plans were drawn by A. F. Priest, local architect, and the work was done by day labor.

Ten Office Suites

On the second floor are ten complete office suites. Each suite has a reception room and an office, and is equipped with a lavatory, hot and cold water, heat and a wardrobe closet. The building represents an investment of $24,400, it is declared.

C. P. Nesselroad, its owner and builder, is an old-time resident of Glendale, having resided here for the past thirteen years. Mr. Nesselroad first saw Glendale some twenty-two years ago, and predicts an even greater growth for the city in the next twenty-two years than heretofore. The fact that Mr. Nesselroad's investments in property here total over $50,000 is ample proof of his confidence in the future.

The MUCKER

by Edgar Rice Burroughs

Copyright 1921 by Edgar Rice Burroughs

As she spoke Billy Byrne's eyes narrowed; but not with the cunning of premeditated attack. He was thinking. For the first time in his life he was thinking of how he appeared in the eyes of another. Never had any human being told Billy Byrne thus coolly and succinctly what sort of person he seemed to them. In the heat of anger men of his own stamp had applied vile epithets to him, describing him luridly as such that by the simplest laws of nature he could not possibly be; but this girl had spoken coolly, and her descriptions had been explicit—backed by illustrations. She had given real reasons for her contempt and somehow it had made that contempt very tangible.

One who had known Billy would have expected him to fly into a rage and attack the girl brutally after her scathing diatribe. Billy did nothing of the sort. Barbara Harding's words seemed to have taken all the fight out of him. He stood looking at her for a moment—it was one of the strange contradictions of Billy Byrne's personality that he could hold his eyes quite steady and level, meeting the gaze of another unwaveringly—and in that moment something happened to Billy Byrne's perceptive faculties. It was as though scales which had dimmed his mental vision had partially dropped away, for suddenly he saw what he had not before seen—a very beautiful girl, brave and unflinching before the brutal menace of his attitude, and though the mucker thought that he still hated her, the realization came to him that he must not raise a hand against her—that for the life of him he could not, nor ever again against any other woman. Why this change, Billy did not know, he simply knew that it was so, and with an ugly grunt he turned his back upon her and walked away.

A slight breeze had risen from the southwest since Theriere had left Barbara Harding and now all hands were busily engaged in completing the jury rigging that the Halfmoon might take advantage of the wind and make the shore that rose abruptly from the bosom of the ocean but a league away.

Before the work was completed the wind increased rapidly, so that when the tiny bit of canvas was hoisted into position it bellied bravely, and the Halfmoon moved heavily forward toward the land.

"We gotta make a mighty quick run of it," said Skipper Simms to Ward, "or we'll go to pieces on them rocks afore ever we find a landing."

"That we will if this wind rises much more," replied Ward; "and as far as I can see there ain't no more chance to make a landing there than there would be on the side of a house."

And indeed as the Halfmoon neared the towering cliffs it seemed utterly hopeless that aught else than a fly could find a foothold upon that sheer and rocky face that rose abruptly from the ocean's surface.

Some two hundred yards from the shore it became evident that there was no landing to be made directly before them ,and so the course of the ship was altered to carry them along parallel to the shore in an effort to locate a cove or beach where a landing might safely be effected.

The wind, increasing steadily, was now whipping the sea into angry breakers that dashed resoundingly against the rocky barrier of the island. To drift within reach of those frightful destroyers would mean the instant annihilation of the Halfmoon and all her company, yet this was precisely what the almost unmanageable hulk was doing. The crew stood huddled and cursing along the starboard side near the bow. All that could be done two sailors were doing at the wheel under the profane direction of Skipper Simms, while Ward and Theriere with a handful of men altered the meager sail from time to time in an effort to keep the ship off the rocks for a few moments longer.

The Halfmoon was almost upon the cliff's base when a narrow opening showed some hundred fathoms before her nose, an opening through which the sea ran in long, surging sweeps, rolling back upon itself in angry breakers that filled the aperture with swirling water and high-flung spume. To have attempted to drive the ship into such a place would have been the height of madness under ordinary circumstances. No man knew what lay beyond, nor whether the opening carried sufficient water to float the Halfmoon, though the long, powerful sweep of the sea as it entered the opening denoted considerable depth.

Skipper Simms, seeing the grim rocks rising close beside his vessel, realized that naught could keep her from them now. He saw death peering close to his face. He felt the icy breath of the Grim Reaper upon his brow. A coward at heart, he lost every vestige of his nerve at this crucial moment of his life. Leaping from the wheelhouse to the deck he ran backward and forward shrieking at the top of his lungs begging and entreating someone to save him, and offering fabulous rewards to the man who carried him safely to the shore.

The sight of their captain in a blue funk had its effect upon a majority of the crew, so that in a moment a pack of screaming, terror-ridden men had supplanted the bravos and bullies of the Halfmoon.

From the cabin companionway Barbara Harding looked upon the disgusting scene. Her lip curled in scorn at the sight of these men weeping and moaning in their fright. She saw Ward busy about one of the hatches. It was evident that he intended making a futile attempt to utilize it as a means of escape after the Halfmoon struck, for he was attaching ropes to it and dragging it toward the port side of the ship, away from the shore. Larry Divine crouched beside the cabin and wept.

When Simms gave up the ship Barbara Harding saw the wheelmen, there had been two of them, desert their post, and almost instantly the nose of the Halfmoon turned toward the rocks; but scarcely had the men reached the deck than Theriere leaped to their place at the wheel.

Indians Believe This Is Head of the Original Strayer From Master's Fold

Grandfather of Rocky Mountain Sheep

The grandfather sheep of the Rocky mountains, known for his unusually large size, and unsuccessfully sought by big game hunters for many years, recently was overtaken by old age and died in a crevass of the Blackfoot Glacier, in Glacier National park. The carcass was recovered by Indian guides and the head mounted. It is now on exhibition at the Glacier Park hotel, and is being sought by the government for placing in the noted Smithsonian Institutet. The horns have the widest spread of any now known—22 inches at the widest point—and all of the measurements of the animal are far in excess of those of the sheep specimen now in the Smithsonian Institute. Among the Blackfoot Indians there is a legend to the effect that the carcass found is that of the original strayer from the fold of the Great Spirit.

RADIO EXPLAINED

SOURCES OF ELECTROMOTIVE FORCE

In the preceding article we described the principle involved in one of two methods of producing electricity, i. e., in "static" or "frictional" electricity. The other method is known as "batteries," or, in other words, "chemical action." When two plates of different substances, such as two metals or a metal and a carbon, are placed in a water solution of certain acids or salts there is found to be a difference of potential between them. If the exposed portion of the plates called the electrodes, are connected by a conductor current will flow. The following list contains the names of some of the substances which are used as battery electrodes. The order of arrangement is such that when any two are taken current will flow through the wire from the one appearing higher in the list to the one farther down:

The salt and acid solutions used are conductors of electricity, but their conductivity is not so high as that of the metals. They are called "electrolytes." Not only do electrolytes conduct electricity but when a current is passed through them the molecules of the acid or of the salt are decomposed or broken up. The metallic part of the molecule, or its hydrogen, always travels toward the terminal from which the current leaves the solution and is deposited there. This is the basis of electroplating processes, and it is in terms of such a process that the ampere was defined, as explained in one of the preceding articles. Other well known examples of electrolytes are solutions of sulphuric acid, copper sulphate, potassium chloride and sodium chloride or common salt. With any two materials from the above table, dipped in one of the solutions mentioned, there will be produced an emf, and resulting flow of current. The farther apart the selected materials stand in the list the greater will be the effect produced.

JAZZ TALK

During his recent tour of this country as a member of the Japanese educational research delegation, Marquis Sarti was moved to deny that the study of Japanese was more difficult than the study of English.

"When you have learned the Japanese language, you have learned it," he argued, "while with English, it is different." By way of explanation he added:

"One day in one of your restaurants I asked for what you call poached eggs on toast, and imagine my consternation when the waiter cried through the service window, 'Two men on a raft.'

"Curious to see what would happen, I ventured to remind him that I wanted them well done and scrambled, but this bothered him not at all, for he merely shouted, 'Shipwreck that order,' and strange to relate, I got exactly what I had ordered."

SUIT YOURSELF

The pastor of a colored church in Southport, North Carolina, out for a morning stroll last winter, came upon two of his deacons in earnest debate.

"Good mawnin' deacons, what is you all discussin' so serious dis mawnin'?" inquired the pastor.

"Good mawnin', Reverent," said Deacon Griffin. "We is sputin' concernin' correck language, and we is sho glad you is come to 'cide it. Which is more properer to say, 'exackly' or 'dezackly'?"

The pastor pondered the question sagely, scratched his head and replied: "Well, you is asked me a hard question in language. I is studied de same question befo', and I don't know perzackly which is more properer."

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE RUSTLING LEAVES

The Fuzzy Fox and the Woozie Wolf sat gloomily on a hillside together and glowered around. That means they looked cross.

"Well," growled the Wolf, "I'm almost ready to give up!"

"I'm not!" snarled the Fox, who, though smaller, was more sly and cunning than his friend the Wolf. "I'm not going to give up trying to catch Uncle Wiggily. Listen, as the telephone girl says, I have a new plan."

"What is it?" growled the Wolf.

"We'll go in the woods and hide behind trees," proposed the Fox. "When Uncle Wiggily hops along, as he is sure to do, sooner or later, looking for an adventure, we'll jump out from behind our trees and grab him. That will be an adventure for him, and a meal for us, as we shall nibble his ears."

"Pooh! Nonsense!" snarled the Wolf. "We've tried that trick time and again, and Uncle Wiggily is always too smart for us! He gets away."

"Ah! but this time it will be different," whispered the Fox. "Listen once more. We shall cover ourselves with patches of moss, and we'll look so much like trees that the rabbit won't know us."

"Well, perhaps that trick may work," agreed the Wolf. "We'll try it. I'll cover myself with green moss and you do the same; we'll hide behind trees and maybe we'll catch the rabbit!"

The Fox and Wolf sat for a little while longer on the hillside, where many dried leaves had fallen from the trees. As they moved their paws the dried leaves rustled.

Some little time after this, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping along, looking for an adventure, he heard a hissing sound on the ground.

"Is that you, my friend Mr. Snake?" asked the bunny, for he could see no one, and yet the dried leaves were moving and rustling near his paws. So the bunny knew it must be a snake crawling along.

"Yes, I am here," hissed the snake. "And, oh dear! Ha! Ha! I have such a good joke to tell you! Tee! Tee! Tee! Ho! Hum!" And the snake laughed until his tail shook.

"Tell me the joke so I may laugh," begged Uncle Wiggily, who was a jolly rabbit.

"Well," went on Mr. Snake, "not long ago I saw the Fox and Wolf sitting together on the hillside. Softly I crept close and I heard them talking. They are going to try to catch you. They are going to cover themselves with moss and hide behind trees along the path where you will go."

"Then I'd better hop to my hollow stump bungalow right away," said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose in alarm.

"No, don't," advised the snake, "As the Fox and Wolf sat there they rustled their feet in the dried leaves. They made just the sound I make as I crawl along—a rustling noise in the leaves."

"Yes," laughed Uncle Wiggily, for he could guess what was coming. "I know the sound you make. What happened?"

"the Fox and Wolf were making

"Well," went on the snake, so much noise, rustling the dried leaves, that they did not hear the rustle I made, and I wiggled close enough to them to bite them. In fact, I was just going to bite them in fun, when the wind suddenly blew off some leaves over my back, and, looking down, they saw me.

"You should have seen them jump up and run, for they are afraid of snakes you know. And to make them run faster I rustled the leaves again. They ran off so fast they nearly lost their tails, and ever since then, as soon as they hear the leaves rustle they think I am coming and they start and run.

"Now this is what you can do, Uncle Wiggily. Hop through the woods until you get to the place where the two bad chaps are trying to make themselves look like moss on the trees. Now that you know their trick you can easily see them. And when you do see them, take a stick, rustle it in the dried leaves and see what happens."

"I will!" laughed the rabbit gentleman.

Through the woods he hopped until he reached the path he often took while looking for adventures.

"I think they'll be somewhere along this path," thought the rabbit.

Surely enough, he had not hopped very far before, all at once, looking ahead, he saw two trees that seemed to have big lumps of green moss on the side.

"Those lumps are the Fox and Wolf," chuckled the bunny. "Here's where I fool them!" He crept as close as he thought safe and then, taking a long stick, Uncle Wiggily rustled the leaves behind the green lump that was the Fox.

"We've tried that trick time and again," barked the Wolf.

"Oh, my! The rustling snake!" barked the Fox, and shaking off the moss with which he had covered himself, away he ran through the woods, bumping his nose against the trees.

Then Uncle Wiggily jiggled his stick in the dried leaves behind the green lump that was the Wolf.

"Oh, the leaf-rustling snake!" howled the Wolf, and away he ran, bumping his nose twice against the trees.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I guess I turned this trick all right. My ears sha'n't be nibbled today!"

And they weren't. And if the rocking chair doesn't tip over backward and put its arms around the phonograph when it's trying to sing, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's oil can.

A TRUE RAT STORY

Auburntown, 6-22-22.

Stearns Electric Paste Co.,

Dear Sirs: Mr. Robert T. Donnell of Auburntown, came in our store the other day and wanted something to kill rats, so I sold him a box Stearns Rat Paste. And he put some paste on six biscuits that night and the next morning he found fifty-four big rats. And the second night he put out four more biscuits with paste on them, and the second morning he found seventeen more rats, making a total of seventy-one rats in two nights, and there were lots more that he did not find.

This is some big rat tale, but, nevertheless, it is so. Just thought would write to let you know that your rat paste is good.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE INDIVIDUAL GIVER

A woman I know never gives any birthday presents.

Nor any Christmas presents.

Nor any anniversary presents.

Sounds as if she were a selfish person, doesn't it?

But she isn't. On the contrary. She is a very generous person in many ways and especially about gift giving. But she doesn't like to give a fixed list of people, on special days. She likes to give when the spirit moves and to whom she chooses.

When the Spirit Moves

"I can't do both," she says; "that is, give a regular list of Christmas and birthday gifts, and gifts when I feel like it, and so I choose to do the latter way. It's much more satisfactory, I think. When I see something that I know someone of my friends would particularly like, I like to be able to buy it for her.

"Maybe it's a book that I have read and know my sister would enjoy. Or perhaps it's a record that my cousin, who has much the same taste in music I do, would love. Or maybe it's something that makes me think of one of my friends because it is just suited to her. Last week I saw the darlingest little brown blouse at a bargain that would just match my sister's new sport suit, so I just bought it and sent it along. And two or three weeks ago I ran across a little set of napkins and doilies in green crepe that just fit in with the color scheme in one of my friend's dining room.

Say It With Flowers

"And then once in awhile I like to send some friend flowers or candy unexpectedly. One of my old school friends was always crazy about daffodils, and every year when the first daffodils come out I think of her and I like to say it with flowers. I know lots of people think I'm queer about it but I reckon that I give as much pleasure that way as giving when everyone else gives—and I enjoy it more myself."

I wish I had as much courage to throw over the conventional as that woman has. If I had I would do just what she is doing.

Of course she gives more pleasure than if her gift arrived on Christmas day, or on a birthday.

Who hasn't had some gray, unendurable day brightened just as if a ray of sunshine broke the clouds of monotony and discouragement when some unexpected little gift arrived. The same gift at Christmas time among a host of others wouldn't mean one-tenth what it means coming so unexpectedly and so freighted with individual, unforced affection. Of course if everyone did this sort of thing, there wouldn't be a host of gifts at Christmas time. But I fancy there is small danger.

Unbirthday Gifts

Somewhere in an article on giving I found these unexpected little gifts referred to as Unbirthday Gifts. I like the phrase, don't you?

Perhaps if people didn't have any set day for giving, someone suggested, they would get out of the habit of giving altogether. Not the people who love to give. And as for the others, is their gift giving worth while anyway?

THEY FIGURE IN JERSEY MYSTERY

Miss Charlotte Mills, 15-year-old daughter of slain choir singer, who hopes that the authorities will keep on the case until the murderer is taken into custody. Miss Mills at first came out in denunciation of the officials who seemed to be getting nowhere in their attempts to arrive at a solution of the double murder, but the action of Governor Edwards in personally interesting himself in the case has given Miss Mills heart. At the right, Raymond Schneider, held after confessing that he lied in accusing Haynes of the murder.

SPIRITUALITY VS MATERIALITY

I, I, I: I, MYSELF; I
THE HISTORY OF ME BY ME
Chapter XXXI.

Last week I told you about the germs—microscopic plants—that could get in milk, and about how much better it is for us babies to have certified milk, if possible, because, while it is more expensive, we can be surer that it is free from these harmful germs and that it is clean and unadulterated.

My doctor says that in case you Mamas cannot get certified milk, it is very important for you to investigate the dairy you get milk from and see if all the requirements for clean, healthful milk are fulfilled. I told you about that last week.

Sometimes Mamas think that milk from a single cow is better for a baby but most doctors believe that milk from a herd of cows is better, because it is less apt to vary. For instance, if the one cow were discontented, or were to eat something wrong or have an unhappy time being chased by a dog or somphin', its milk would change and be indigestible for us babies. So, if the dairy is well conducted, usually milk from a herd is thought to be better.

If there is any doubt about whether the milk is clean or not, it should be boiled or pasteurized to kill all of the harmful bacteria. Boiling for five minutes kills all of the harmful ones, but it also destroys some of the vitamins which are necessary for us. The vitamins, however, can be supplied by fresh orange or tomato juice.

Pasteurization will destroy the harmful bacteria, too, although occasionally some of the more resistant types are not destroyed. For babies who live on no other food but milk, some physicians believe that pasteurization is better than boiling. The fruit juice should be given in either case. I have told you how that is given.

Pasteurized milk is a much safer milk than ordinary raw milk that is not certified. If Mamas cannot get the certified nor the pasteurized milk, they can pasteurize babies' milk themselves. Pasteurizing really means a sort of par-boiling. The home pasteurization can be done as follows:

After the milk is modified for baby and put in its bottles, place them in a wire rack and place the rack in a dish of cold water so that the water comes above the level of the milk in the bottles. Put a thermometer in one of the bottles and heat the water until it registers 145 degrees F. Then keep it this temperature for 30 minutes. The milk is then taken out and cooled by carefully setting in cold water. Then it is placed in the ice chest.

Because boiled or pasteurized milk does not sour so quickly as milk which has not been boiled or pasteurized, sometimes Mamas think the milk is still good when it is really too old to use. They should know this, that even after boiling and pasteurizing, other germs get in and the milk may be very full of harmful bacteria or it may be decomposed and the babies who get it might become decidedly ill.

Talking about how very much trouble has to be taken to see that good milk is obtained for babies, and knowing how much trouble it means to modify the milk so that we can digest it, makes me terribly glad that my Mama nurses me herself so that I get this good, pure, clean milk made especially for me only, for all my diet except one feeding. I don't mind that now. Au revoir.

BEAUTY CHATS by EDNA KENT FORBES

USING MAKE-UP

"Dolly V." wants to know whether she will be thought a fast young lady if she tints her cheeks with rouge and employs a lipstick. She has blue eyes and should have a pink skin, she has blonde hair and naturally covets the pink that go with her type.

As for the lip stick, I can't imagine why she wants it, except that a shop she passes every day displays, she says, such fascinating ones in its window. I know the fatal fascination of these beauty shops—those little jars of cream and pots of pomade, and bottles of perfume are always so alluring!

I don't see in the least why little Miss Dolly should not make her own cheeks pink since Nature has unkindly omitted to do it for her. I am aware of the fact that I shall have six letters of protest tomorrow morning, four of them probably from old gentlemen who never wanted their cheeks pink and consequently cannot see why any attractive young girl should. Nevertheless, when I answered Dolly's letter I told her to use rouge but with the warning that only the littlest bit was to be put on, and that little so deftly that only an expert could tell its artificiality.

Should you use rouge?

As for the lipstick, that's rather a different matter. Not one woman in a thousand can paint her lips to look well. Besides even the best lipsticks are somewhat messy, the color comes off on one's handkerchief or the table napkin or even the cheek of the girl you enthusiastically rush to embrace. Lipsticks should be used only to protect sensitive lips from bad weather, and in that case the cream should be white or tinted no deeper than the natural color of the lips.

Maisy—Blackheads that fester show there is impurity in the blood which the skin is trying to throw off. If your digestion is sluggish, it would likely cause such a condition. Cleanse the system and build up your health. In addition cleanse the pores with blackhead powder.

M. J. S.—As you have had this disfiguring lump for two years, it cannot be a pimple or it would have festered and cleared itself in a short time. Your description of it with the brown head would indicate that it is a mole. In any case, consult a dermatologist.

Tomorrow—Boudoirs and Bathrooms.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

EXPORTS BREAK RECORDS

The world is increasing its dependence upon the United States for refined sugar. Our exports of refined sugar in the current calendar year, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, will far exceed those of any earlier year in the history of our refining and export trade. In fact, the total quantity of refined sugar exported in the seven months of the current year for which we have now a record is greater than in any full year preceding and is thirty times as much as in the year preceding the opening of the war.

Practical Housekeeping by Florence Austin Chase.....

LAUNDRY EQUIPMENT

We are beginning to realize that a separate room for laundry purposes is an essential in a well-equipped home. The cleansing of personal and household linens is a part of "good housekeeping" and the laundry equipment should be chosen with a view to making the work as light and pleasant as possible.

Even though a great deal of laundry work is sent to a commercial laundry (and there are many commercial laundries today doing excellent work) there are a few pieecs that some housewives prefer doing, or having done, in the home. For these a small room equipped with stationary tubs, a wringer, with plenty of hot water available will provide all of the equipment necessary.

Fortunately, many women are learning that the washing machine, properly used, is a great economy of fabric, time, and strength. Many machines are on the market, and we need to discriminate and to select the machine constructed to force the water through the fabric without injury to the fabric, and with the smallest amount of muscular energy. Of course if machine power is available, the problem is easy. These many washers may be classed in four groups. One is a revolving arrangement, sometimes consisting of two corrugated boards set in the center of a tub of clothes, and an outer one for the soap and water. Still a third rocks the clothes in soap and water. A fourth type makes use of the suction principle.

The wringer is of great assistance to good work. It should be a good machine having hard rubber rollers, ball-bearing action, and good springs at side. It must be cleaned after using, dried and the pressure loosened, and the whole kept covered. Many of the electric washing machines have wringer attachment, swinging to three positions. These are truly time and labor savers.

But a short time ago the electric iron was considered quite a luxury, but today it is so universally used that an iron heated by any means other than electricity is very much out of date.

Small mangles are now made for family use, and are great labor savers, not only in doing flat work, but in doing many other pieces as well.

The ironing board should be firm, well padded, and covered with a clean cloth. The cover may be made to tie on so that it can be easily changed. Ironing boards should be placed in a good light. The ironing board placed in a wall cabinet is very convenient, especially where the room is small, or storage is limited.

In purchasing equipment for the laundry, care should be exercised to select such labor saving devices as will best meet the needs of the household. A washing machine not too large, nor yet too small for the number of pieces in the average washing, a large mangle when a smaller one might do the work better, etc. The construction of the equipment and the material of which it is made is also important. Too often we think of the first cost, instead of considering the length of time it will give good service with the least amount of energy and cost of repairs. We must also remember that just because a piece of goods of any kind is high-priced it is not a guarantee that it is the best of its particular kind. So many women think they cannot understand anything of a mechanical nature and that they must rely upon someone else's judgment in selecting mechanical equipment. The fact of the matter is, the mechanical lavor-saving devices for the home are so simply constructed that any woman of average intelligence can, with a very little study, discriminate and select the device that will best meet her own particular needs.

It's a Fact

WOMAN'S 'PARAMOUNT ISSUE'

Miss Alice Paul, leader of the National Woman's Party, has issued a statement from her Washington headquarters, saying that women voters are demanding that the suffrage victory be carried to its logical fulfillment in the granting to women of "complete political, legal and civil equality with men." It may be a valuable tip to some of the politicians to learn from Miss Paul that "candidates who wish to appeal to the women voter will adopt such a plank in their platform."

EIGHTEEN BILLION DOLLARS

Eight hundred and seventy-five million fine ounces of gold, valued at $18,000,000,000, have been produced by the world since Columbus discovered America. About $8,000,000,000 of it are in circulation as money or in banks and public treasuries of the world—two billion of the eight is in the United States treasury. The other $10,000,000,000 worth of gold has been used up in the industrial arts or has disappeared in the 430 years since the keeping of accurate gold statistics began.

DEATH REVEALS SECRET

"Signor" Giuseppe lived in Florence for forty years. When "he" died the other day they discovered that "he" was a woman.

If there should be such a thing as an egg trust it would certainly make us writhe under the yoke of oppression.

They Say That

There is a stupendous surplus of money in the United States and there are huge sums in the hands of individuauls and corporations who seek sound investment. The call of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for subscriptions to a government bond issue of $500,000,000 at 4½ per cent on a long term, met with phenomenal response. The issue was over-subscribed several times.

It was demonstrated that there is a vast deal of money in the country only awaiting the opportunity to go into safe and sound investment. It was demonstrated that confidence pervades the country and that the people are ready to put their surplus money into investments. The national government, by this timely stroke, has discovered the people to themselves. It has shown the country that almost limitless financial and economic power lies in the hands of the people themselves. It is shown too, that the people regard United States government bonds as very attractive investment securities. The treasury's experience in this move is extremely gratifying.

Book Reviews

Miss Cecile Tormay, whose novel, "The Old House," has recently appeared under the McBride imprint, is herself an interesting figure. An aristocrat, of a very ancient Hungarian family, she is intimately acquainted with such chief figures in Hungarian life as Count Julius Andrassy, Count Aponnyi, etc. During the revolution which began in November, 1918, Miss Tormay lived with her mother in Budapest and took a vigorous part in the movement which brought about a counter revolution. For her activities she was proscribed by the Bolsheviki and upon the outbreak of the Red Terror she was forced to go into hiding and narrowly escaped hanging at their hands. Her diary, containing an account of her experiences during the last few years, is in train for publication in England and America.

"The Wreck of Europe," by Francesco Nitti, former prime minister of Italy, has been translated into English, German, Hungarian, Dutch, Finnish, French, Spanish, Swedish, Russian, Serbian, Croatian, Bulgarian, Polish, Greek, Danish, Norwegian, Turkish, Arabian, Rumanian, Portuguese and Japanese. The American edition, with new material and carefuully revised translation, is issued by Bobbs-Merrill.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS are the twin sisters of beauty. Modern scientists have proved by many experiments that our health and happiness are vitally affected by our surroundings. This fact should lead us to exercise the greatest care in selecting our home and its furnishings. And, since the atmosphere of the home depends so much on the treatment of the walls, we should, above all, be careful to select attractive wall paper.

GOLD RUSH BRINGS BASEBALL INTO NATIONAL USE

Father of Great Game One of Those Who Crossed Plains in 1849

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20. — he spread of baseball as a na-onal pastime is probably due to e California gold rush in 1849. This is the belief of a number followers of the sport, who ve recently been digging into e life and career of Alexander y Cartwright, the father of or-nized baseball.

Cartwright, who was born in ew York City, in 1820, drew up e first set of rules and organ-ed the first baseball club, the ew York Knickerbocker, which ayed the first game of organ-ed baseball on June 10, 1846, Elysian Fields, in Hoboken. he Knickerbockers had been or-anized a year when the first ame was played against a tem-orary club styling themselves the New York Club."

Cartwright spent the first twen-y-seven years of his life in New ork, where he was first em-loyed in a broker's office, and ter in a bank. He was a mem-er of a sporting club which layed a form of baseball known s "rounders," or variously as ne-old-cat, two-old-cat, and ownhall, on a spot near where adison Square Garden now tands. The growth of the city rove them to Murray Heights, nd later crowded them from here in 1845. It was then that Cartwright called a meeting of young men to consider hiring a playing field. A committee was formed, and instructed Cart-wright to draw up a set of rules for the game. A few days later, under his direction, the Knicker bocker team was formed. Elysian Fields was selected as a playing ground.

On those grounds Cartwright drew a diamond on the dust, and explained the game he had formulated from the old game of rounders.

Taught Game En Route

Early in 1849 the gold rush to California started, and Cartwright heard the call. On March 1, 1849, he joined a party of adventurers who were crossing the plains. They proceeded to Pittsburg, where during a stay while sup-plies were bought, he taught the game of baseball to the young men of the town. It was an im-mediate success. During stops at St. Louis and Independence, Mo., he also introduced the game.

At Boundary, just before start-ing on the long journey across plains and mountains, he wrote in his diary:

"April 28—During the past week we have passed the time in finishing the wagon covers, stow-ing away property, varied by hunting, fishing, swimming and playing baseball. I have the ball and the book of rules that we used in forming the Knickerbock-er club back home."

He carried the ball and book of rules with him all the way on the long journey. When he arrived at Fort Sutter, where Sacramento, Calif., now stands, on July 4, he wrote in his diary:

"All I have is the clothes I am wearing, my journal, the original baseball, the book of baseball rules, my rifle and ammunition."

During the trip he had suffered great privation, and was sick for a time. In San Francisco a phy-sician advised him to go to the Sandwich Island for his health. So, on August 17, 1849, he sailed for Honolulu, where he arrived, still carrying his baseball and book of rules. He introduced the game in the Hawaiian Islands.

Sport historians believe that Cartwright's trip across the con-tinent, and his introduction of the game in cities from Atlantic to Pacific, and even mid-Pacific, has done much to give the game the national character it has to-day.

Three College Teams Up Against Battle

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—With one of its members already de-feated in a big inter-sectional game, another hooking up of a fast and dangerous rival tomor-row and a third facing almost certain defeat next Saturday, Harvard, Yale and Princeton, the entente cordiale of collegiate football, are beginning to regret the agreement that calls for them to drop inter-sectional games after the current season.

Yale, beaten rather convinc-ingly by Iowa last Saturday, would most certainly like noth-ing better than another fling at the Hawkeyes. Yet the Blue is bound by this agreement to drop the whole matter, and no mem-ber of the Big Three is given to that sort of business. They may prate of taking early season games "in their stride," but you will notice that, once defeated, they are loaded for bear the fol-lowing year.

That is the case at Harvard to-morrow for the Centre game. The Colonels pulled out the deci-sion in 1921 but they will have to be a much better football team to repeat the performance to-morrow. Harvard will be shoot-ing with both barrels.

Consider also the plight of Princeton, which has to travel all the way to Chicago next week just for the sake of an almost inevitable defeat. It will be the second in succession for the Tigers at the hands of Chicago, but they are pledged to drop the series, nevertheless.

Intersectional football games can always be relied upon to stir up the interest and spirit of the largest percentage of fans. Last year the intersectional games between California and Washington and Jefferson, Centre and Harvard, Chicago and Princeton had the whole land agog.

The first on the bill of East vs. West games this season had all the more interest attached to it because of the fact that each team was coached by a member of the family of Jones. Not an uncommon thing, but those particular Joneses hap-pen to be brothers—Tad Jones, coach at Yale, and Howard Jones holding the same posi-tion at Iowa U! When those two leaders for honors in their respective spheres met, not only was intersectional su-premacy at stake but, bitterest of all, the rivalry of brother against brother.

When Iowa went through the season last year without suffering a defeat, she won the conference championship and, incidentally, uncovered a few real gridiron stars.

Aubrey Devine at quarter, made the All-American. Among other members of that team whose names came up in dis-cussing Iowa's prowess, was Gordon Locke.

Locke is a shaggy haired, husky, built as solid as a bride's biscuit. This fellow, like Hes-ton of years past, runs low and hard. Tacklers climbing aboard Locke invariably get a two or three-yard ride before they bring him down. Despite his hefty build, Locke is fast and agile, running with a sort of corkscrew twist gait that is very deceiving. His powerful legs rip through the arms of the tackler who neglects to get his shoulders into play. This fellow is big boned, as the sketch shows, and x-ray photos last fall proved that he has un-commonly heavy shoulder bones and thick skull.

His head is not solid ivory, however, as a high scholastic average proves. Injuries and sickness kept him out of the limelight last season, but in spite of these handicaps, Locke beat Illinois and Notre Dame almost single handed. He ap-pears to be very fit this season, which does not bode well for Yale and conference teams.

Locke is a senior, a Phi Delt and above all, a fullback who should prove one of the lead-ing captains of the gridiron this year.

TROJANS BATTLE NEVADA ELEVEN

University Teams to Meet Tomorrow; Sagebrushers Reported Strong

That the University of South-ern California-University of Ne-vada football clash tomorrow will be a real battle was assured last week when the Sagebrushers downed Coach Joe "Timberwolf" Pipal's Occidental varsity by a 35 to 0 score at Reno. Also, U. S. C.'s comparatively poor show-ing against the University of Ari-zona Wildcats at Bovard field gives added weight to the argu-ment.

Through the graduation of "Rabbit" Bradshaw last June it was thought that this year's Ne-vada eleven would be worse than ever, but to the surprise of grid-iron followers all over the Pa-cific coast this season's aggrega-tion is reputed to be faster than ever. The invaders are coming to Los Angeles for the principal purpose of wiping out the defeat given them at the hands of the Trojans two years ago, and they will spare no energy in accom-plishing that task.

Hug Hugs' Job

"Little Billy" Hug, fast 140-pound quarterback, has grace-fully stepped into the shoes left vacant by the indomitable Brad-shaw and has done more than was ever expected of him. Although gifted with a small stature Hug was the outstanding performer of both teams last Saturday, gain-ing ground through line or around the ends almost at will. He is expected to shine against the Trojans Saturday.

Captain Hobbs at left end. Scranton and Lowry in the back-field, and Duborg at center are among the shining lights of the squad.

While the U. S. C. Trojans have been practicing diligently during the past week no one, except Coach Henderson himself, can tell how the team will appear Sat-urday afternoon. A part of the gloomy mentor's curriculum is to have his cohorts intersperse good playing with bad throughout the early weeks of the season, and for that reason it is difficult to at-tempt to figure what will happen against Nevada. U. S. C. should win from the Nevadans by two or three touchdowns, but if no improvement is displayed over that of last Saturday the in-vaders are liable to return to Reno with a Trojan's scalp under their belt.

Sad Blow to Them

The injury sustained last week by Bill Blewett, former manual arts' sensational all-around ath-lete and who is now captain and halfback of the California Fresh-man football squad, is a severe blow to the northerners' Peagreen hopes, as he was considered the best ground-gainer on the team. The mishap came in the early part of the game, Blewett wrenching his knee in such a way as to tear several ligaments loose in the leg. He is not expected to get back into the lineup this season.

One Big Surprise

One of the strangest happen-ings ever to occur on a local grid-iron took place in the U. S. C.-Arizona game last week. Amor Galloway, star quarterback who had just replaced Chet Dolley for the Trojans, was playing "safe-ty" in the fourth quarter when Hobbs of Arizona dropped back in punt formation.

The kick was partially blocked, the ball traveling but twenty-five yards. Harold Galloway signaled to his brother, who was dashing in from his position, to take the catch. The latter, unable to quite reach the oval on the "fly," kept on running toward the line of scrimmage, catching the ball a fraction of a second after it had hit the turf.

The Arizona players were so surprised, as was Galloway, that he kept on running for a thirty-yard gain before being downed by a Wildcat back who had sensed what had happened.

The WORLD OVER By FRANKLIN B. MORSE. PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Having won the light heavy-weight boxing title of the world when he defeated Georges Carpen-tier, the Frenchman, Siki the Senegalese now seems to have an-nexed a temperament usually credited to operatic singers. How-ever, it all adds to the gaiety of the nations, and heavens only knows the world hasn't much to be gay about at the moment.

With Bull Montana, a second rate wrestler being starred in the movies, producers are likely to be swamped with a lot of mediocrity that is running loose both in the mitt game and mat game want-ing a chance to appear on the sil-ver screen.

In the death recently of Walter Pomeroy, the swimming game lost one of the best long distance swimmers in the sport. He did little swimming away from his home town of San Francisco but he held the record for two of the toughest swims in that neck of the woods, namely the Golden Gate swim and the swim around the Seal Rocks. Both of these courses call for stamina to fight the currents. There are many persons who know Pomeroy who considered he would have a chance to swim the English chan-nel if he had prepared for the event.

The question still is before the house: When, where and who will Jack Dempsey fight? It is a long time in the settling.

Notwithstanding all the agen-cies of the toe hold, headlock, double wrist lock and other pun-ishing grips, sore eyes still remain the bugbear that the wrestler most fears. The reason for this is that the men perspire profuse-ly, it runs into their eyes and carries all the dust and dirt into them. Both Strangler Ed Lewis and Ad Santel have been victims of the malady to a greater extent than the majority of matmen.

Because of the fact that the majority of persons who go to a football game will try to get down as low as they can to the field of play shows they are unaware of the fact that the higher up one goes, even at the expense of be-ing more distant from the grid-iron, the better the view of the play. When on a level with the play, if it goes around the end opposite the spectators, the two teams practically are in his range of vision and hide the play. From above one looks down on the whole thing. "You'll always find the expert watcher sitting along the top row of the grandstand or bleacher, as near the middle of the field as possible.

SPORTS CHATTER By BILL UNMACK PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

While innumerable new records were made in the major leagues during the past season, the elim-ination of marks was not entirely confined to the big league players and teams. The minor leagues also showed considerable aptitude to shoot into oblivion various rec-ords that have been on the books.

In the case of the majors, how-ever, the records cracked by those teams were the elimination of many marks of not only years' standing but in most cases the records broken were world rec-ords. In the case of the minor league marks however, there is none recorded which breaks a world minor league mark, the records broken being the records of the particular leagues in-volved.

Chicago National league defeat-ed Philadelphia 26 to 23 August 25 in a game that in itself was accountable for at least six rec-ords being broken, and it is a co-incidence that on July 16 the Ver-non and Salt Lake City teams of the Pacific Coast league played a game which Vernon won 20 to 14 and incidentally broke or es-tablished no less than five of the Coast league records.

The Pacific Coast league has been the most prolific destructing agency in minor league records, though all the records broken are purely coast league marks. The principal marks established in minor leagues follow:

Pacific Coast League

Most hits and runs in 9 inn-ing game, 41 hits, 37 runs, Ver-non, 27 basehits, 26 runs; Salt Lake City, 14 base hits, 11 runs, July 16.

Most runs by a team, 9 inning game, 26, by Vernon vs. Salt Lake City at Salt Lake City, July 16.

Most hits in one inning, 13, by Vernon at Salt Lake City, July 16.

Most runs in one inning, 14 by Vernon at Salt Lake City, July 16.

Most at bats in one game, both teams, 92, Vernon, 55; Salt Lake City, 27; July 16; also San Fran-cisco, 50; Portland, 42, July 9. Nine inning games.

Most hits in one nine inning game, 43; San Francisco, 29; Portland 14, at Portland, July 9.

Five times at bat, 5 hits, Griggs, Los Angeles, July 30, and Ellison, San Francisco, April 14.

Most assists by team, one game, 25, Salt Lake City against Oak-land, September 4.

Other Leagues

Consecutive games won by team, 25; Wichita Falls, Texas league, July to August.

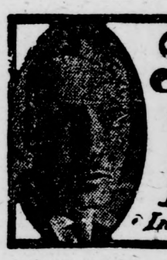
Most home runs in one day, 21, in double header, Lincoln vs. Hastings, at Hastings in Nebraska State league, August 13, first game, 11 innings, second game 7 innings.

Successive walks by batsman, 7 by Charles Gorman, Des Moines, Western league vs. Denver, May 18.

Girls Win Contest and Boys Defeated

The girls' volleyball and boys' soccer teams from Glendale Ave-nue Intermediate school jour-neyed to Eagle Rock yesterday afternoon where the inter-school games had been scheduled at the Eagle Rock Central school. They were accompanied by Miss Natalie Mackay, volleyball coach, and Floyd Masters, coach for the boys' soccer team. The girls came home victorious, winning over their opponents with a score, 2 to 1. The boys lost to Eagle Rock with a score of 2 to 1.

The trip was made by motor through the courtesy of Mrs. A. S. Chase, Miss Alice Lookabaugh, Mr. Christainson, N. H. Stanley, A. T. Blanford, Mrs. R. W. Meeker and R. E. Bremer. Miss Gladys Sharpe, vice principal, also was one of the party. The games were refereed by R. E. Bremer.



The Sport Crucible By Davis J. Walsh International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—To whom it may concern, and all others, it may be mentioned that the chances of the all-New York nuisance being repeated for the world's championship in 1923 are about one in twenty. For this, Allah be praised.

The idea of a private little world series has about worn out its welcome, here and everywhere. No one, except the club owners and players concerned, are for it. In two years the novelty of the thing has died a lingering death and even New York fans would be pleased to see some outsider break through.

Barring the mid-winter jug-glery of players, for which both New York entries are noted, the outsider in question should ride through on the following reasons, cited in the order of their import-ance:

1. The growing strength of the Tigers and White Sox and possi-ble improvement of the Browns.

2. Few clubs have been able to win a pennant three years in suc-cession.

3. The morale of the Yanks is at a low ebb as the result of the terrible manhandling given them by the Giants.

Having denuded the Boston Red Sox of everything worth their trouble, the Yanks cannot look to the other clubs in the league for assistance next year. They will be strictly on their own and that may not be enough. It is by no means a young club.

The Tigers and White Sox, on the contrary, were just coming at the finish of the 1922 campaign. Cobb needed just one more re-liable pitcher, and he may get the man he is seeking before next spring. In any case, the Tigers should be at or near the top all season.

The Gleason entry lacked a third baseman last year, but is getting Willie Kamm, the $100,-000 kid, for 1923. Baseball men assure us that Kamm will go over very big, and if he does the Sox are made. Dick Kerr will be back and his addition to the pitching staff will make the White Sox a near championship outfit at the very least.

Further than that, the Browns chased the Yanks right into the wire this year and, given another day or two, might have beaten them. They will be in there swinging again next season, and the Browns are quite some swing-ers.

The odds against three-ply pen-nant winning is another Yankee handicap. Since 1900 only two clubs have been aple to repeat for three years—the Cubs in 1906, 1907 and 1908 and the Giants in 1911, 1912 and 1913. Since the latter year even repeat-ing for the second year has be-come a precarious pastime.

The old Athletics, something of a ball club, couldn't do it. They won in 1910 and 1911, flopped in 1912, and were back again in 1913 and 1914. It was the same with the Red Sox, who came through in 1912, didn't come back again until 1915, won again in 1916, but lost out in 1917 and won again for the last time in 1918.

The old third year hurdle was too high for them. It will be no lower for the present Yankees who are not as good a ball club as either the Macks or the Sox, never were and probably never will be.

Only one element might revise the outlook, to-wit, a new Yan-kee manager. It is not conceiv-able that they can win again for Miller Huggins.

BUSINESS WOMEN ARE HOME LOVERS

Ask Many Questions About Kitchen Appliances and Residence Comforts

NEW YORK.—"Are business women interested in homes?" This question is being answered by the Women's Activities Exhibit here at the Hotel Commodore, in a most interesting fashion—and affirmatively. Two of the booths at the exhibit are offering housing opportunities to women, and neither of them—the commercial hotel or the co-operative housing enterprise—ever is without its group of interested inquirers.

"Every business woman wants to know about the kitchen. They don't care half so much about the kind of living rooms we have to offer," says Miss Florence Kober, who is helping to put up a co-operative apartment house for business women.

One nook of the exhibition has been given over entirely to home-making devices, designed or sold by women, and there always is a group of women leaning over the electric board where ironing is done without irons, or standing around the washing machine where washing is done without hands and all the other labor-saving inventions displayed.

The Home Economics association of New York has been putting on a daily program, the topics including among others of general interest, "Housekeeping for the Bachelor Girl," charting the equipment and offering recipes to fit the facilities of a kitchenette. The association reports more inquiries from business women than from any other class of visitors at the show.

Shows New Opportunities

"One of the biggest benefits of the exhibit will be the reminder to women already in business of the opportunities constantly opening on all sides," declares Miss Helen Thompson, of the booth given over to the Woman's Press, the national women's publishing house operated by the Young Women's Christian Association. One of the most recent publications of the Woman's Press is Miss Thompson's book, "Do's and Don'ts for Business Women."

"Women in the business world, as a group, are not given to circulating among themselves," says Miss Thompson. "As a rule, they know too little about other women besides those with whom their day's work brings them into direct contact, and of what they are doing. Men mingle with those in their own professions far more than do women, airing their brains and getting initiative from each other's successes or failures. At the exhibition, any young woman can see dozens of flourishing firms, built up by women who had only grit and an idea as their original capital."

To Answer Questions

The willingness of such women as those referred to by Miss Thompson to answer questions, and to tell how they themselves have achieved success, is one of the outstanding features of the exhibit.

"If we have pointed the way to bigger things for even a few business girls in New York city, we shall be satisfied with the results of the show," said Mrs. Elisabeth Sears, president of the New York City League of Business and Professional Women recently. "When we started with the idea of the show, we decided that we wanted to make a contribution ourselves to the community, not to raise money for ourselves from the community. That was the reason why we gave up one of the small ball rooms, where we might have built booths, for some of the exhibitors we had to refuse, in order to have a fashion show where every night we have contrasted flapper styles with comfortable, commonsense clothing for business women."

Chinese Big Knife Fights Corruption

NANKING. — The "Big Knife Society of China," or the so-called "Far Eastern Branch of the Ku Klux Klan," has recently been organized and one of its avowed objects is to clean out all dishonest officials — especially those who are selling China's national integrity. The military governor of Kiangsu province has expressed his alarm and has sent out a special pacifying squad to calm the neophytes.

Strange rites are reported at night and the official account rendered by the magistrates of the district in which they have been observed characterizes them as dangerous maniacs. But in view of the character of the officials the avowed object of the society does not appear wholly without reason.

No missionaries thus far have been alarmed. The activities seem more against the corrupt Chinese administrators than against the foreigner. In fact, they seem to be a natural evolution of the American "big stick" clan.

Nevertheless there is a certain amount of danger to the outlying missions, in view of the disordered state of China's army and the demoralized finances which permit their pay to be regularly in arrears. With a mass of starving people confronted daily with flagrant examples of wholesale official corruption a serious outbreak easily might be inspired.

The "Boxers" grew out of an organization similar in name called the 'Sword Society." Its members were required to take an oath by the sword, after a lurid ceremony in which the neophyte danced himself into a state of frenzy. Their bodies were painted and they set themselves forth to purify China, among other things cleaning out the "foreign devils."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.—Advertisement.

Women May Serve On 'Hammer' Jury

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20. — That women will play an important part in determining the fate of Clara Phillips, alleged "hammer murderess," was evident today when she went on trial in Superior Judge Houser's court before a morbid crowd that packed the courtroom to the doors, charged with having beaten to death pretty Mrs. Alberta Meadows July 12, last, in lonely Montecito drive.

The panel from which the jury will be selected contains about the same number of women as men, and Assistant District Attorney Charles Fricke, for the prosecution, and Attorney B. A. Herrington, who will defend Mrs. Phillips, today expressed themselves as unconcerned as to the sex of the jury that tries the case.

The state will hinge its case primarily on the testimony of a woman—Mrs. Peggy Caffee, confessed eye-witness to the revolting crime.

The state will demand the death penalty, Assistant District Attorney Fricke explaining that in asking "an eye for an eye," the prosecution will only seek to have the jury follow the law — which prescribes death as the price for taking another person's life.

Poisonous flies carry shiny wings; bad women pretty faces.

Lineberger's Congress Record Is Praised

At a luncheon given recently at the Angelus hotel, Los Angeles, to the newspaper editors of the ninth congressional district under the auspices of the ninth district Republican congressional committee, almost all of the influential papers of the district were represented and each of those in attendance showed his desire to put the Republican ticket "over the top" with as large a vote as possible, and stress was laid upon the necessity of returning Congressman Walter F. Lineberger to Washington in the November election because of his qualifications to properly represent the district, and, because the district is normally Republican, it would be out of the question to send a representative belonging to an opposing political praty.

Among those who spoke, beside Major Lineberger, were Ralph Arnold, chairman of the Republican county central committee, and W. E. Evans of Glendale, first vice chairman.

Congressman Lineberger, in his talk, gave an outline of the general conditions existing in the district and pointed out that the Republican leaders in congress expected this district to support the administration of President Harding and to show appreciation for legislation enacted in behalf of his constituency.

Brother of Rector's Wife Denies Guilt

LA VALLETTE, N. J., Oct. 20.—"There is no blood upon my hands."

This emphatic declaration was made here today by Henry Stevens, brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall of New Brunswick, N. J., whose husband, Rev. Dr. Edward Wheeler Hall, was found murdered together with a beautiful choir singer of his church, Mrs. James Mills.

Stevens has been called to New Brunswick for interrogation several times. The present is the first statement he has made to the press. Hitherto, his lips have been sealed for all save the county prosecutors and detectives.

Railroad Aims to Reduce Accidents

CHICAGO—In an effort to further reduce the hazards of automobiling the Pennsylvania railroad has promulgated these rules for auto drivers:

When approaching the railroad and before crossing the tracks

First—Slow down.

Second—Shift into lower gear to prevent stalling on the tracks.

Third—Look in both directions.

Fourth—Listen.

Fifth — Don't try to beat a train over a crossing, stop if a train is approaching.

Sixth—After a train has passed, make sure that no others are approaching from either direction.

Seventh—Be doubly careful at night and on strange roads.

The Pennsylvania points out that in the last five years 9,101 persons were killed and 24,008 injured in grade crossing accidents.

The Kilkenny cats fought so ferociously that when the fight ended only the tail of each remained.

NEW MARKET WILL BEGIN SATURDAY

Broadway Central to Start Business; All Conveniences for Housewives

Occupying the entire ground floor of the new Nesselroad building at 217-219-221 West Broadway, the Broadway Central Market will make its official bow to the housewives and general public of Glendale and vicinity tomorrow morning.

The new market has a frontage of sixty-seven feet on Broadway and has been fitted with the latest and most approved equipment for conducting a strictly sanitary market, with the object in view of providing the best possible service for the public.

The meat, bakery and delicatessan departments will be in charge of Fred Tribolet, a former business man of Phoenix, Arizona. Long experience in the business with plenty of capital and an appreciation of the fact that Glendale demands the best, has induced him to provide a market which will be a credit to the city.

Attractive Prices

The grocery department is owned by the Von's chain of grocery stores and will be known as branch store No. 29. A. A. Riberdy will be in charge. By reason of the tremendous buying power of this concern, they are enabled to sell groceries at the closest possible margins. According to Mr. Riberdy, the firm will live up to their motto, "Save it on Von's Prices."

The fruit and vegetable departments will be in charge of Tony Karahel, who is declared to have been a successful produce merchant for more than twenty-five years in Los Angeles and Pasadena. He will carry a complete assortment of all seasonable fresh fruits and vegetables for the benefit of his Glendale patrons.

A modern refrigerating plant has been installed as well as a cold room, the temperature of which is always kept at the freezing point. Each of the glass show cases in which meats are on display, are fitted with amonia pipes maintained at the freezing point by the refrigerating plant. This insures that all meats are constantly in the best condition and sanitary.

Aid to Housewife

The delicatessen department will prove of invaluable service to the housewife, especialiy when she is compelled to get a meal in a hurry. Here she can find a variety of cooked meats, salads, etc., and various lines of imported food stuffs.

Special arrangements have been made for the comfort of women patrons, as a model rest room has been fitted up and is always at their disposal.

On Saturday, the opening day, several food demonstrations will be made. Souvenir bouquets of flowers will be provided for the women visitors. From 5 p. m. until 8:30 p. m. a varied musical program will be furnished by Kelley's Shrine orchestra.

STATE'S WEALTH IS FIVE BILLION

Fifth of Sum Within Los Angeles County Boundaries; San Francisco Second

SACRAMENTO.—All California property, including real estate, improvements, personal property and railroads, has a total value of $5,135,984,563.

This is according to figures issued by State Controller Ray L. Riley, showing comparative property values, indebtedness and tax rates in the various counties of the state.

Of the grand total of state property, more than one-fifth is located in Los Angeles county, the figures show. Here the property total is $1,573,418,167.

County indebtedness in the state is given as $119,221,295.33, with more than half that sum credited to San Francisco county. Here the total indebtedness is $71,117,200.

The state has a total of 50,372,032 acres of assessed land and real estate valued at $2,354,169,919. Personal property is valued at $707,373,454, while the money and solvent credits total is $55,447,811.

The total value of railroads in the state is $298,318,229, as given by the state board of equalization.

The highest tax rate in the state is levied in Amador county. Here the rate is $4. It is based on a grand property total of only $6,906,536, although this county contains all the richest gold mines of the mother lode country.

In spite of this fact, Amador county's assessed property value is lower than that of other counties in less wealthy mining districts. Calaveras, Del Norte, Modoc, Eldorado and Placer all have property values far above Amador.

Santa Cruz county has the second highest tax rate, with San Bernardino ranking third, Nevada and Sonoma tying for fourth place, and San Francisco coming in fifth.

The lowest tax rate is levied in Kern county, where the rate is $1.40.

San Francisco, second to Los Angeles in property values, has a total of only $858,062,426. The tax rate in Los Angeles is $1.81 as against 3.47 in San Francisco. Alameda county is third in property values, with $321,011,101.

QUALITY SHOP TO OPEN TOMORROW

Women, Misses and Children Stock Will Be Carried In Newest Store

Tomorrow, Saturday morning, Glendale's newest store, the Quality Shop, will open its doors for the first time to the public of Glendale and vicinity.

The Quality Shop, according to its proprietors, will cater exclusively to women, misses and children. The store proposes to fulfill in every particular the obligation which its name implies—quality.

With the opening of this new store the continual growth of Glendale is particularly emphasized. Metropolitan in every respect, its appointments give one the impression that they are shopping in a Los Angeles cloak and suit house, but quite to the contrary, it's a Glendale institution.

Carry Complete Line

The firm purposes to carry in stock a full and complete line of cloaks, suits, dresses, millinery, lingerie and hosiery, which will more than favorably compare with any similar lines shown in the city, and at the same time offered at proportionate prices.

A. Deutsch, one of the proprietors, is a thoroughly experienced mercantile man, having been actively engaged in business in southern California for a number of years past. For several months he has been making a study of Glendale and her merchandise needs, and the result of his conclusions is—the Quality Shop.

Much Married Woman Divorces Her Tenth

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill.—"If at first you don't succeed, try—"

Such was the life maxim of Mrs. Cora Lilley, proprietor of a rooming house, as regards husbands.

Mrs. Lilley, 40, has just obtained her tenth divorce from her ninth husband. No. 10 was also No. 8. She first divorced No. 8 when she learned she had not been divorced from No. 7 a year, as required by law. When the year had elapsed she married No. 9 and later returned to No. 8, who is now ex-No. 10.

J. A. DALEY BACK FROM TRIP EAST

President of Chain Grocery Company Sees Southland Prosperity Continuing

Los Angeles and Southern California will continue to draw permanent residents in proportion to the progress it makes in developing commercial industries to provide work and investment for them, is the conclusion drawn by J. A. Daley, president of the Federal Grocery company, owning and operating the chain of nearly 100 "Daleys Stores" throughout southern California.

"Every tourist who comes here," he says, "is a prospective resident. Many of them are ready to locate at once if they find conditions favorable. Commercial development will make it possible for both the workman and investor to settle in southern California."

Mr. Daley has just returned to Los Angeles following an extensive trip in the northwest, middle west and eastern sections of the country, taking part in the National Chain Store Grocers' convention held September 21, 1922, in the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York. He says that the grocery stores in California are far ahead of those in the east, both in equipment and building, and that the next year would see a big increase in the chain store business.

Best of Security

"A few years ago," continued Mr. Daley, "chain stores were unknown west of Pittsburg. Oldline grocers laughed at the idea. But today it has spread itself to such an extent that thirty-three chain store organizations were represented at the convention. These stores have a combined capital of from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 and a yearly business of over $600,000,000.

"Bankers now look on chain stores as the best security, as the chain stores are economical factors of food distribution, and as they are able to handle the wholesale and retail distribution combined better than by the former system wherein each was under separate control and operated at a greater expense.

"The small grocer will always be with us because he has a function to perform which cannot be handled by the chain stores. As long as the population is so widely scattered the corner or country grocery is a necessity; the chain stores function only in thickly settled population centers where the small grocers cannot begin to supply the demand."

Regarding the growth of southern California, Mr. Daley said he was glad to get back to a community where things were constantly expanding and enlarging. Cities in the east, according to him, have changed very little in the last ten years.

Palm Beach Denies It's for Rich Only

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Palm Beach has been looked on as the millionaires' playground, and the Palm Beach Yacht club is determined that this reputation shall be broadcast no longer. Members of this club wish the world to know that the waters of this city are free to all craft.

Yachting has been revived at Lake Worth, lying between Palm Beach and West Palm Beach. The yacht club is erecting a handsome club home on the West Palm Beach side of the lake with all club housing facilities. A number of small sailboats now are to be seen in races almost daily on this picturesque lake, and the fleet soon is to be increased. In the days before the automobile and good roads sailing and canoeing on local waters were popular pastimes. Now the white sails of pleasure craft again are reflected in the bright sunlight against a palm-fringed shore, while the "rooting" of a large gallery of enthusiasts on racing days rivals a baseball game.

Among participants in these races are men from all walks of life. Handicaps are allowed so that everyone may enter. Large numbers owning boats are not rated in Dun or Bradstreet.

As late as the fall of 1920 a high grade mine of feldspar was discovered near Ottawa, Canada, and the material from this is nearly all used for the manufacture of high tension electric insulators.

Score of Students Injured In Rioting

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—While surgeons at the county hospital today sought to save the life of Roger Vargas, 18, and a score of other students were being treated for severe and even serious injuries, the police and authorities of the University of Southern California and the University of California, Southern Branch, launched a rigid investigation of the riot that occurred between the two schools early today.

Those injured were burned by gasoline bombs and maimed by blows on the head and bodies. The riot took place on the campus of the southern branch of the University of California, North Vermont avenue, and more than 2,000 students were said to have participated.

Legion Convention Selecting Commander

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 20.—Selection of a new national commander gripped the attention of the American legion national convention here today while the so-called "conservative" element continued to view with chagrin the wrecking of their attempt to "boss" the former "doughboys" and "soft pedal" criticism of the administration's soldiers' bonus and veterans' hospitalization policies.

It was believed that who ever is chosen successor to Hanford Macnider, retiring national commander, will be as militant and outspoken as he is in his attitude toward the bonus, rehabilitation and other big problems confronting the administration and the legion alike.

The last day of the convention found a dozen or more prospective candidates still in the field. All night conferences and "trading" failed to develop enough strength for any of them to claim sufficient votes to win on the first ballot.

Up to the middle of the nineteenth century the manufacture of shoes in the United States was done entirely by hand.

Spends 60 Cents to Help Free His Pal

AKRON, Ohio—"It will cost you sixty cents," answered Deputy Sheriff George Schutz, replying to a query by Peter Brovich, who wanted to know how much he had to pay to get his friend, Mike Kost, out of jail.

The deputy sheriff's answer followed an inspection of the jail records, which showed that Kost had one more day to serve in working out a fine for intoxication.

Mike was liberated when Pete paid over the sixty cents.

Display Alligator in Texas City Park

PALESTINE, Tex.—An unusual exhibit is attracting crowds to the city park here. Albert Walker, with the assistance of a negro farm hand, after a lengthy battle, captured a seven and one-half foot alligator in Wolf creek, near here. Alligators were never known to have been in the waters before.

LINCOLN, Neb.—In the town of Normal, near here, is what is thought to be the smallest bank in the country. It was organized three years ago with a capital of $15,000.

A small frame structure, only 16x20 feet, it represents a total amount of resources which might easily be the envy of a much larger banking house, for its stockholders are conservatively estimated to be worth upward of $2,000,000.

It tastes just as good when made in one as the other. It is the quality that counts.

COUNCIL OPPOSES THREE MEASURES

Officials Urge Propositions Nos. 10, 11 and 30 Be Beaten in Election

Opposition to propositions 10, 11 and 30, to be voted upon at the general election, November 7, was expressed recently by the city council.

"Be It Resolved," states the official edict on the subject, "That the city council of the city of Glendale is unalterably opposed to constitutional amendments 10, 11 and 30, and urges the citizens of this municipality to vote 'No' on each of the propositions, and to do all in their power to defeat them and thus protect the public interest."

Similar action was taken by recent session of the City Attorney's association of Southern California. William Hazlett, president of this association, has issued the following communication on the subject:

"These propositions are designed to not only oust the cities of all control of the use of their streets by transportation companies, both rail and motor, but to so complicate the cities in the conduct of their own municipally-owned public utilities as to discourage all municipal ownership.

Need No Interference

"The cities, which have been diligent enough in their own interest to establish and operate their own public utilities need no interference from the state railroad commission or any other state body in the conduct of their affairs, and nothing but danger can result from the adoption of this proposition No. 11.

"Proposition No. 10, to tax public property, is absurd and is absolutely being prompted by the private corporations.

"Proposition No. 30, to turn over to the state railroad commission complete and exclusive power to grant franchises on city streets, would make it possible for that commission to grant bus or railroad franchises along boulevards which the city may desire to keep entirely free therefrom. The city would be powerless to prevent such action. On the other hand, the commission would have the power to absolutely refuse to grant a franchise in a portion of the city which it might feel is absolutely necessary to its proper development.

"Furthermore, there is a special provision in this proposition authorizing the companies to at once surrender all of their present franchises, thereby freeing the companies from further obligation to pay any portion of their revenue to the cities and to take out any franchises entirely eliminating any payment to the cities whatever, as well as providing that the transportation company need not pay any portion of state improvement costs."

EXPERTS OPERATE ON AUTOMOBILES

Edward Holland Company in New Building and Well Equipped

"No, we don't know anything about these new fangled gland operations," said Ed Holland, of the Edward Holland Co., Inc., today. "But we do know something about operating on decrepit automobiles. In fact, are thoroughly familiar with rejuvenating them, and our operations are successfuul."

Mr. Holland then went on to explain that repairing an engine, rebuilding a motor or in fact, doing anything to improve an automobile mechanically, was very often just as delicate a task as a physician performing an operation. He said: "In order to do good work, it is first necessary to have the proper kind of tools, with the right facilities for using them. That is just where we come in. We are located in a brand new building and are completely equipped with the newest and most up-to-date machinery for doing all kinds of automobile repair work, no matter whether it is a simple matter of grinding valves or overhauling and rebuilding the engine."

Dead Men's Suit Is Still in Texas Court

FORT WORTH, Tex.—A suit, styled Jake L. Hamon vs. Warren Wagner, is on file in District Court here.

The suit involves about $750, and was filed originally by Hamon against Wagner in Eastland county. It has now been transferred to this court.

Both Hamon and Wagner are now dead, and both met violent deaths. Hamon was killed by Clara Smith Hamon, who, after a sensational trial, was acquitted. Hamon was a millionaire and prominent in Republican national politics.

Wagner, another oil man, was killed in this city. Floyd Holmes was tried for the killing and acquitted.

The suit is now being carried on by relatives of the decedents.

SAY CAR BUYING IS NOW AT PEAK

People Are Willing to Buy if Assured of Maximum Value, Is Word

People have money to spend for autos and are willing to buy now, if they get maximum value for every dollar invested.

In fact, it looks as if the 1922 buying season has just reached its peak, instead of being about over, according to Geo. T. Smith, local distributor for the Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles, referring to Overland and Willys-Knight motor car sales since their big price reductions, September 18.

From Maine to Southern California, dealers of these cars made new sales records in quick time, following the latest reduction—the second this year.

Within four days the Southern California distributor wired orders for twenty-three carloads of Willys-Knights and Overlands. Des Moines, Ia., bought more Willys-Knights in forty-eight hours than in the whole month preceding the new low prices. The very first day after the reduction, Huntington, W. Va., bought fifteen of the two cars.

Demand Is Good

Even in the northernmost states like Maine and Vermont, where the snowplow is scheduled to begin its winter work about this time, a number of small dealers have sold one or two cars each day since the price cut, in towns of only a few hundred inhabitants.

In explanation of these increased sales, dealers say that Overlands and Willys-Knights are now lower priced than any other cars with quality, features and advantages such as they possess. They especially cite the Overland's patented overhanging triplex spring suspension, giving a 130-inch comfortable riding base on an easily handled 100-inch wheel base. Also its greater braking surface, totalling one square inch for every fourteen pounds of car weight, as well as its all-steel body construction, real baked enamel finish, greatly strengthened rear axle and economical mileage records.

Besides emphasizing the Willys-Knight as the lowest priced car ever sold with a Knight sleeve valve motor, they call attention to its velvet action clutch, ease of steering, adjustable front and three-quarters floating rear axles and its beautiful body lines.

Can't Break Dishes for 15 Years Now

CHICAGO. — For fifty years Peter C. Choginiskis, 73, of 1244 Wellington street, was a model husband. Now, for fifteen years more, he must abstain from breaking the dishes or in any other way breaking the peace in his home. Judge Richardson, in the Chicago Avenue police court, told him so when he put him under probation, as a result of his wife's complaint, that he had broken the dishes and "just general acted up" when he came home Tuesday evening.

Footless Cripple Is Freed by Judge

NEW YORK. — When Clyde Gaerth, a footless cripple, was haled before Magistrate Dale, in Brooklyn, on a charge of vagrancy because of his mendicancy, the magistrate in dismissing the charge, said with emphasis, he would quit his job "rather than send this unfortunate man to jail."

Gaerth, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, lost his feet in an accident seven years ago.

GETTING NOWHERE By Morris

THEATRES

The T. D. & L.

T. D. and L. patrons have a real treat in store for them tonight, for a preview of a Rodolph Valentino picture will be given at 8:30 o'clock. The picture, which has been brought direct from Hollywood, is as yet unnamed and the only hint of its theme is that it has the atmosphere of the East.

It will be presented in addition to the regular feature, "Pink Gods," the cast including James Kirkwod, Bebe Daniels and Anna Q. Nilsson.

The Glendale

A tale of the California aristocracy founded by the 'Forty-niners' is the foundation for "The Idle Rich," being shown at the Glendale theatre. Kennett Harris is the author of the story, which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, while Bert Lytell is the star of the film.

And it takes Lytell to do it. Pep, personality and power are the three outsanding features of the hero about whom Kennett Harris has woven this story of old and new California.

Dr. Durfee Writes Views on Bill No. 20

Editor The Evening News — Fearing that the drug medical association might work one of their "foxy tricks," which past experience has taught us to expect, I called on the president of the Federated Brotherhood, prior to the banquet of Tuesday night, and requested five minutes to present the Osteopathic Bill No. 20. I was refused on the ground that only moral issues could come before the brotherhood and that all requests for political propaganda had been and would be refused; that the brotherhood was open to moral questions only. I was perfectly satisfied with this, feeling that osteopathy would have no occasion to defend itself against possible misrepresentation. I feel confident that the president was playing fair, and had he suspicioned that the speaker would have taken advantage of the occasion to air his political misunderstandings, he would have directed him in the selection of his theme. The speaker made no definite statement of opposition, but insinuated that the osteopath lacked the educational requirements. Does he not know that the qualifications of the Osteopathic college were tried in the superior, appellate and supreme courts of California? And each court decided that not only the 4,000 hours, required by law and taught in the medical college, but a 1,000 hours more were required, in which distinctively osteopathic subjects were required. For fifteen years osteopaths have taken the identical written examination as the drug doctors, under a board dominated by allopaths. There are two osteopaths on the board and during all these years they have been deciding the qualifications of thousands of allopaths in the branches examined by osteopaths. If these osteopaths are not qualified, what assurance have we that those examined by them are qualified?

Bill No. 20 does not change the law nor aim to do so; what it aims at is a "change of administration" of the present law, giving osteopathy what other schools have. Granting the osteopaths what the medical, dental, veterinary, pharmacy and optometry professions already have —namely, fair and intelligent administration of the licensing law by their own boards and appointed by the governor for that purpose. Does it look plausible that the osteopaths who for fifteen years have taken the same test of scholarship with the medics would be willing to lower the standing, and license osteopaths of inferior education to enter into competition with us? Today "a medcal board" is licensing osteopaths as physicians and surgeons, not out of love, but by compulsion of the courts. The drug doctors know nothing about osteopathy, therefore are not competent to examine and license men to practice osteopathy. We ask the voters to vote Yes on No. 20 and give osteopathy "a square deal." Some may say, "There are too many boards." This board will be supported from osteopathic fees, which the drug board now receives and not one cent ever can come from the taxpayer.

This bill does not in any way affect any other school of medicine, except to destroy the "monopoly of the drug doctors."

DR. I. H. DURFEE.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Too Much Meat

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only a part of the waste and poisons from the blood; then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.—Advertisement.

Other studies in "Grandma's" interesting collection are a large canvas of Yosemite, two pen and ink studies, one of moonlight on Silver lake near Visalia, a study of violets, the redwoods, Bullfrog creek near King's River canyon, the South Fork of King's River, Blue lake in Amador county, a German homestead, Arch rock, near the Cliff house in San Francisco, sunset over the Golden Gate and other landscapes and studies of fruits and flowers.

One picture that should receive special mention is an oil done in Oakland, showing a country scene of the district to which New Broadway was extended.

Class Holds Fair at Church Tonight

The Live Cole class of the Christian church will give a fair tonight in the social hall of the church. A very good program in addition to the booths and concessions has been arranged by the committee in charge.

Probably the best selling article will be the home-made candy, of which people seldom tire. There will be also canned fruit, home-made pies, cakes, and other pastry, popcorn and peanuts, and all kinds of fancy embroidery. Everything has been donated by the members themselves. the only help being asked from the public is that they attend, and make the fair a success.

In addition to these various booths, there will be a "regular" fortune teller from Los Angeles, who has very kindly donated her services. She has had a great deal of experience along this line, and a "rushing business" is expected.

At the end of the selling, a splendid one-act play will be given by three members of the class. It is entitled "One Sweetheart for Two," the very name of which suggests exceedingly good comedy. Mrs. Bertha Jackson McKay has the leading part in the playlet, while Miss Lillian Shropshire and Harry Marple constitute the remainder of the cast.

The proceeds of the affair are to be used for the purchasing of new furniture for the class room. The public is very earnestly urged to be present. It will commence at 7:30.

WEARS AMERICAN SLIPPERS

According to the preliminary report statistics received by the department of commerce, in August, 1921, 4039 pairs of slippers were exported by the United States, and 17,672 in August of 1922. A similar increase is noticed in the eight-month period from January-August, 1921, 39,846 pairs, valued at $63,793 were exported which was considerably less than the 66,265 pairs, valued at $80,747, which were exported the eight months ended August, 1922.

SLUMS OF DUBLIN CALLED BANE OF ALL IRELAND

Parnell Street, Reeking With Filth, Festering Sore In Erin, Says Writer

By EDNA HUBER CHURCH,
International News Service.

DUBLIN.—Within the shadow of Parnell's statue and around the corner from O'Connell street, which bears the scars of Ireland's battle for freedom, lies a district which must continue an ugly wound in the side of the new Irish Free state unless it is rapidly cleaned up.

Parnell street—Dublin's slums—the worst slums in the world. Here a nation is disintegrating, while around the corner are men struggling to build a new nation.

Saturday night in Parnell street presents a picture that is unforgettable. Squalid women, carrying tiny babes; dirty and begrimed urchins, reeling, careening men; leering youths—all jam Parnell street on Saturday night.

Undernourished Children

In the archway of a splendidly carved old Queen Anne doorway a mother sits with her brood—scrawny, ill-nourished children and dirty children.

Against the railing lurches a man under the influence of potent Irish "poteen." Lookit Timmy—he's drunk!" the children shriek.

Along the curbstones are lines of girls and women, with their faces and attire showing no signs of water or of care, presiding over little soap boxes filled with herrings, tomatoes, cabbages, pears, and other fruits. Here the women of the neighborhood haggle in shrill voices over 3 cents' worth of potatoes, while they dispatch "Jimmy" across the street to "fetch a penny's worth of milk."

In the light of a shop window, sprawled over the pavement, a group of tiny (and again dirty-faced) gamins are engaged in a game of cards, wrangling and betting.

Everywhere are signs of carelessness. Doors open and belch forth whole broods of men, women and children—the family coming out for a breath of air—and from the open doors come peculiar and unpleasant odors.

Dark, Dingy Streets

The streets are dingily lighted, only a flickering gas lamp showing through the haze and smoke at sparse points. The homes are more dingily lighted, and the weak rays of light beat their way through grimy window panes with the greatest difficulty.

Parnell street is a fastering sore but withal there is about it a sense of light-heartedness. The wretched residents of this street of filth and grime laugh and joke and occasionally break into a bit of a song.

There is poverty in Dublin's slums, poverty of the worst kind, but there is more—there is filth and dirt of the sort that is unnecessary.

If the Irish nation is to live and thrive, Parnell street and its counterparts must be lifted by its own bootstraps and wiped out.

The Free State government is alive to the danger of the Dublin slums and has a program for the elimination of this sore spot once there is peace.

High School Club Will Give Dance

Announcing a new social club among a group of high school boys, the Bonus Tempus club composed of twenty-three members of the local high school announces their initial dance which takes place tomorrow evening.

Among their members were found enough musicians to bring forth seven talented players who will tantalize the dancing feet of those present at their dance. The officers elected for the club were Chas. Greer, president; Claude Whitefield, vice-president, while David Riskin holds down the position of treasurer.

The manufacturers of carbon black in the United States annually consume 40,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Michigan joyriders burned three barns. Must have thought they were touring the blazed trail.
